Harriman Lauds N.Y. Guardsmen

Albany, April 22 (AP) — Gov. Harriman says "all of us in New York can take great pride" in the National Guard's performance in "Operation Minuteman."

The governor yesterday extended "heartiest congratulations" to guardsmen who took part in the nationwide test alert Wednesday night.

Guard officials said that more than 90 per cent of the army units and more than 83 per cent of the air guard personnel reported for the surprise test.

Albany, April 22 (AP)—Gov. Harriman's administration is investigating the State Public Works Department.

E. Burton Hughes, deputy superintendent of the department, said today he did not know the nature of the probe but he described it as "sort of an inquiry or study."

The Knickerbocker News said the inquiry was being conducted under the direction of J. Irwin Shapiro, state commissioner of investigation.

"THE SHAPIRO investigators are demanding that department employes disclose all income for the past five years and from whom it was obtained," the paper said in a signed story by its Capitol reporter, Arvis Chalmers. "Particular emphasis is being placed on 'outside work,'" the story declared.

Harriman's office declined comment.

Shapiro was not available. John W. Johnson of Buffalo, a Democrat who was appointed early this year to succeed Bertram Tallamy, a Republican, as superintendent of the department, was reported to be out of the state.

Tallamy, head of the State Thruway Authority, was not available.

The Knickerbocker News said that "as many as 10 public works employes have been summoned to testify at private hearings, with more to come.

"Notices have been sent to other department personnel, it was learned, requesting their presence at further closed-door sessions. The questioning is being done in the state office building."

THE NEWSPAPER said also that "other reports indicate, although they could not be con-

Bill Vetoed Until Hearings Are Held

In the opinion of the State Department of Public Works "neither Hurley avenue nor Washington avenue can be satisfactorily developed as an arterial street," and the two hearings now pending before the Public Service Commission in relation to abandoment of the O & W Railroad, as well as modification of the crossing over the branch line of the New York Central on Washington avenue, will have a "final hearing" on any solution for the location of an arterial highway in that area of Kingston.

These facts and also that no money has been appropriated for work this year on the Kingston arterial route, have been given as a reason for Governor Harriman's veto of the Wilson bill which would have defined the state arterial route connection with the thruway in that area.

IN THE OPINION of the State Department of Public Works these problems should be resolved in time for a new bill to be introduced at the next session of the state Legislature.

Abandonment of the O & W. Railroad tracks of the Ellenville branch line and final disposition of the Washington avenue viaduct problem might have an important bearing on the alignment of the arterial route approach over Route 209 to its connection with the thruway interchange.

DISAPPROVAL of the bill which would have placed Hurley avenue, a portion of Washington avenue and the Washington avenue viaduct on the state's arterial route, will "in no way hold up construction on the project" in the opinion of James Truex, director of public relations for the State Department of Public Works.

This information was contined in a telegram which was received by Thomas J. Plunket, chairman of the Ulster County Democratic County Committee, who had been asked by Governor Harriman to investigate the desirability of the governor signing the bill into law. Plunket had announced he would recommend that the governor sign the bill.

WHEN GOVERNOR Harriman vetoed the bill which was introduced in the Assembly by Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson and sponsored in the Senate by Senator Wicks, Plunket said he would attempt to ascertain why the bill had been vetoed.

Governor Harriman vetoed the bill on Tuesday without comment. Mayor Stang and other local residents had backed the bill which would have placed Hurley avenue from the city line to Washington avenue and that portion of Washington avenue from the town of Ulster to Hurley avenue, including the Washington avenue viaduct, on the arterial route. The State Department of Public Works had also indicated favorable interest.

TEXT OF THE telegram to Plunket from James Truex, director of public relations, State Department of Public Works, Albany, said:

The bill disapproved because neither Hurley nor Washington avenue can be satisfactorily developed as an arterial street. There is pending an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on the abandonment of the Kingston-Ellenville branch of the New York Ontario and

Best Ways Are Sought On Vaccine

Two Congressmen Sure of Supply

Washington, April 22 (AP)—Two members of Congress listened to about an hour of discussion today on the best means of assuring that Salk polio vaccine can be made available on an equal-to-everybody basis and expressed confidence an agreement would be worked out quickly.

Sen. Hill (D.-Ala.), chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, and Rep. Priest (D.-Tenn.), chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, left the government-sponsored meeting after it had been underway about an hour.

BOTH SAID that on the basis of what they had heard they were confident some kind of agreement aimed at voluntary handling of the problem would result from the meeting.

Rep. Priest added that his committee "stands ready at a moment's notice to consider legislation if that is necessary."

Secretary of Welfare Hobby, who called the meeting of representatives of government agencies, the medical and public health professions, the drug industry, congressional committees and others, said as she went into the closed-door session that she expected "many problems and concerns to come up today."

SHE SAID the objective was to see to it that the Salk vaccine gets to the places where it is needed most at the time that it is needed.

Rosendale Boy Feared Drowned After Search

An all night search by a party of more than 100 men failed to disclose any trace of David Edge, five, who was feared drowned in the Rondout Creek at Rosendale Thursday afternoon.

Rosendale citizens, volunteer firemen and deputy sheriffs worked all night with grappling hooks and searched both banks of the creek, using portable lighting systems provided by fire departments from Rosendale and neighboring communities. The search was continued this morning.

THE CHILD was feared drowned after his toy gun was found on a rock protruding into the creek behind the Rosendale Post Office, and his hat was seen floating downstream.

Another, more hopeful theory, however, was that the child may have fallen into the creek and gotten wet, and then ran away to hide.

Both possibilities were being followed up, as searchers spread into the area and explored the creek banks and the area behind the buildings along Rosendale's Main street. At the same time, several boats were procured and grappling was in progress in the creek.

SWIFT CURRENT in the creek and a hard rain during the night added to the difficulties of the searching party.

The boy, son of Walter and Jean Edge, was last seen shortly after 3 p. m. going down toward the creek behind the Post Office in the village, according to a sheriff's office report.

A few minutes later, his toy gun was found and a hat, believed to be his, was seen floating downstream.

George Moylan notified the sheriff's office at 5:25 p. m., and deputies were sent to the area, later to be joined by Sheriff Cluett Schantz and Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg, who took charge.

MEANWHILE, Rosendale firemen were called out and joined the search under their fire department officers. Men and apparatus also came from Bloomington, Rifton and Tillson fire companies, with portable lighting systems set up to illuminate the entire creek area. Volunteer members of Cottekill and High Falls fire companies also joined the search.

The boy's parents were preparing to open a dress shop in the village, according to the sheriff's office information, and the child apparently had "run on ahead" of his mother when she was about to go to the village post office.

'Face-Saving' Is Charged by Morse In Formosa Plan

Washington, April 22 (AP)—Sen. Morse (D.-Ore.) said today the Eisenhower administration is "trying to save face" in the Formosa Strait situation by "eliminating its implied commitment" to defend the Quemoy and Matsu islands.

Morse said he will seek a vote in the Foreign Relations Committee next week on his resolution to limit to Formosa and the nearby Pescadores authority given President Eisenhower in the defend-Formosa resolution passed overwhelmingly by Congress in January.

THE COMMITTEE appeared certain to reject the Morse limitation.

The Formosa resolution, which Morse opposed, gave Eisenhower full backing to use U. S. military force to defend "closely related positions" deemed essential to the defense of Formosa. That would cover the coastal islands.

Sen. Knowland (R. - Calif.) loosed a thinly veiled swipe at Secretary of State Dulles last night in reiterating his contention that Quemoy and Matsu must be held.

Dulles has said this country would not defend the coastal islands as such but would watch

Fluorine Noted Having Effect Only on Teeth

The younger a child begins taking fluorine in his water, the greater his dental benefit, according to reports at Thursday's meeting in Newburgh of groups interested in fluoridation study.

It was also noted at the session that fluoridation has no demonstrable systematic or developmental effect on children except for reduction in tooth decay.

Children's tooth decay in Newburgh declined 60 per cent in comparison to Kingston since fluorine was added to Newburgh's drinking water 10 years ago, according to the preliminary report of the fluoridation study. Kingston's drinking water has no fluorine added.

The State Health Department released comparative figures for the two test cities at a luncheon meeting at the Hotel Palatine in Newburgh.

Statistics covering the period from 1945 to 1953 were presented by Dr. David B. Ast, director of the State Health Department's bureau of dental health.

The average reduction in dental caries in Newburgh's children compared with Kingston's was 60.3 per cent over all and up to 75 per cent in some cases, according to well documented figures compiled by state health authorities.

The report indicated that the younger a child begins taking fluorine in his water, the greater his dental benefit. Children who were 10 years old in 1953, and therefore not lifetime takers of fluorine, showed a 51 per cent reduction of tooth troubles. But younger children, who always had fluorine, showed reductions of 75 per cent in the six-year-old group and 68 per cent in the seven-year-old group.

Attending Thursday's luncheon meeting from Kingston were Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave, county health commissioner; City Clerk

Nehru Assails NATO, Urges Neutral Policy

Bandung, Indonesia, April 22 (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru assailed the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today as a protector of colonialism. He urged his own neutralist policy upon other delegates to the 29-nation Asia-African conference.

"We should not take any sides in the cold war," declared the Indian leader, who has been trying to keep the first international conference of the Asian-African countries from bogging down in an ideological argument.

Nehru's blast came in response to a statement from Turkish delegate Fatin Rustu Zollu that "Turkey would not have survived (Russian expansion) and we would not be at this conference today" if she had not joined NATO.

"WE HAVE HEARD what Turkey has to say," Nehru responded. "That is one side of the case. The other case would be presented here. But India does not stand for either side. We do not approve the Communist or the anti-Communist powers. We think that they are both wrong and that their policies are leading us to the brink of war."

The Indian leader contended that the 14-nation organization headed by the United States, Britain and France is "one of the most powerful protectors of colonialism, though it was created for self defense."

"It is an intolerable humiliation," he said, "for any nation of Asia or Africa to degrade itself by becoming a camp follower of one or the other of the powers blocs. . . . We will not join either bloc because that means losing our identity."

Nehru spoke strongly in favor of coexistence.

"The only way to bring peace into the world is to reduce the area of tension through coexistence," he said.

THE CONFERENCE ran into its first big deadlock today in a bitter argument over charges of "Communist colonialism."

A subcommittee, after arguing on the Communist issue for more than two hours, finally adjourned until tomorrow. The issue at stake was a move by non-Communist powers to put the conference on record as condemning "subversion" as well as old style colonialism.

Harriman Names Corsi to Refugee State Committee

Albany, April 22 (AP)—Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman revived the state committee on refugees today and named Edward Corsi as one of its 17 members.

Corsi was fired April 10 by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, a fellow Republican, as a consultant on refugee problems. Corsi called it "shabby and un-Christian treatment."

DULLES, in explaining why he fired Corsi, said the New Yorker was trying to take over the running of the refugee program and that he was not qualified to do so. Administration of the program is the responsibility of R. W. Scott McLeod, State Department security officer.

Harriman said last night that Corsi's ouster showed that the Eisenhower administration was "insensitive" to the needs of the people.

Corsi said in Washington that he will be "very happy to serve" on the revived commission.

THE WHITE HOUSE in Washington said today Maxwell Rabb, secretary to the cabinet, has declined an invitation to testify at Senate hearings on the Corsi case.

Trains to Use Standard Time, But Not Buses

When you move your clock or watch ahead one hour Sunday morning before retiring to observe Eastern daylight saving time, keep a wary eye focused on that timepiece if you have to catch a train in the morning.

Railroads will observe standard time, a spokesman for the West Shore Division of the New York Central reported this morning. Although no new timetables have arrived as yet, the spokesman gave as an example a train leaving Kingston or Rhinecliff scheduled for 5:15 a. m., railroad time would leave 6:15 a. m. on daylight time.

THE FERRY running between Kingston and Rhinecliff will operate on daylight saving time, it was announced by the New York State Bridge Authority office here.

Bus companies in the area said they would observe schedules on daylight time. Buses leaving and arriving in Kingston will go by the time on your watch, according to a Freeman survey today of the Adirondack Transit Lines, Inc., the Greyhound Lines and Pine Hill Bus Corporation.

Hearing Affects Kingston

A hearing at Newark, N. J., on the New York Central Railroad's bid to discontinue passenger service on its West Shore line would affect all trains, including those with scheduled stops here, it was indicated today.

A railroad official was slated for cross examination at the New Jersey Public Utility Commission hearing today.

THE RAILROAD claims it is operating a line between Weehawken and Albany at a deficit, and main opposition is expected from about 4,000 commuters from north Jersey and Rockland county, who say they have no other convenient means to get to and from their jobs. Their case is due to start, probably in Teaneck, May 16.

Businessmen Will Organize Monday

Newly-elected members of the board of directors of the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the Court House and organize for the year. Officers will be elected and other business transacted.

Parking will be one of the problems to come up for discussion, it was stated by one of the directors. Closing of the Fair street entrance to the free parking lot back of North Front street, "has presented a problem," he said.

New directors elected at the annual meeting Wednesday night are: Adrian Kaplan, Vincent Burns, James Rowe, Oscar Lawatsch, Jack Short, Clyde Wonderly, Jr., Ed. Minasian, Joseph Scholar, Jr., Joseph Scott, Herbert Gertner, Charles Hoppe, Albert Flanagan, Norman Shapiro, Jay Melton and George Svirsky.

Head-Joined Siamese Girls Parted; Doctors Hopeful

Chicago, April 22 (AP) — The head-joined Andrews siamese twin girls were separated last night and surgeons are "guardedly optimistic" that both will survive.

Mercy Hospital said the girls had a restful sleep during the night and their condition was "good."

Never have two similarly linked twins survived separation.

Dr. Harold Voris, who headed the team of 14 doctors performing the operation, said it was completed in the relatively fast time of 4½ hours. This compared to 12 hours, 40 minutes required for separation of the famed Brodie twins in 1952. Rodney Brodie, now 3½, survived; Roger died 34 days after the separation.

Unlike the Brodies, the Andrews girls, Deborah Marie and Christine Mary, now nearly 7 months old, had separate sagittal sinuses. The veins which drain blood from the brain.

Dr. Voris said this fact was responsible for the operation's success.

He reported that, going into the operation, surgeons planned to complete it only if the twins retained sufficient strength.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John W. Barrett, director of Catholic hospitals in Chicago, said the separation was "touch-and-go" at times, with the girls rallying every time their strength began to ebb.

After the operation, the twins

Water Problems in Ulster Told for Kiwanis Members

Water supply problems faced by Ulster county communities were discussed by Harry F. Edinger, director of environmental sanitation of the county health department, at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Thursday.

Ulster county, in common with much of the rest of the country, is experiencing difficulties in providing adequate water to meet increased residential and industrial needs, Edinger indicated. Changes since 1900 in the nation have put water supply facilities behind the needs of the nation, he said. These changes include the increase in population, and the suburbanization of communities.

Outlining the problems in the various communities of the area and the attempts being made to meet them, Edinger pointed out that planning must anticipate future needs because any water supply project takes from five to 10 years from the time of inception to completion.

Any solution that involves limitation of use of water would be "setting a top on the standard of living," Edinger warned.

Fluorine Noted Having Effect Only on Teeth

The younger a child begins taking fluorine in his water, the greater his dental benefit, according to reports at Thursday's meeting in Newburgh of groups interested in fluoridation study.

It was also noted at the session that fluoridation has no demonstrable systematic or developmental effect on children except for reduction in tooth decay.

Children's tooth decay in Newburgh declined 60 per cent in comparison to Kingston since fluorine was added to Newburgh's drinking water 10 years ago, according to the preliminary report of the fluoridation study. Kingston's drinking water has no fluorine added.

The State Health Department released comparative figures for the two test cities at a luncheon meeting at the Hotel Palatine in Newburgh.

Statistics covering the period from 1945 to 1953 were presented by Dr. David B. Ast, director of the State Health Department's bureau of dental health.

The average reduction in dental caries in Newburgh's children compared with Kingston's was 60.3 per cent over all and up to 75 per cent in some cases, according to well documented figures compiled by state health authorities.

The report indicated that the younger a child begins taking fluorine in his water, the greater his dental benefit. Children who were 10 years old in 1953, and therefore not lifetime takers of fluorine, showed a 51 per cent reduction of tooth troubles. But younger children, who always had fluorine, showed reductions of 75 per cent in the six-year-old group and 68 per cent in the seven-year-old group.

Attending Thursday's luncheon meeting from Kingston were Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave, county health commissioner; City Clerk

'Face-Saving' Is Charged by Morse In Formosa Plan

Washington, April 22 (AP)—Sen. Morse (D.-Ore.) said today the Eisenhower administration is "trying to save face" in the Formosa Strait situation by "eliminating its implied commitment" to defend the Quemoy and Matsu islands.

Morse said he will seek a vote in the Foreign Relations Committee next week on his resolution to limit to Formosa and the nearby Pescadores authority given President Eisenhower in the defend-Formosa resolution passed overwhelmingly by Congress in January.

THE COMMITTEE appeared certain to reject the Morse limitation.

The Formosa resolution, which Morse opposed, gave Eisenhower full backing to use U. S. military force to defend "closely related positions" deemed essential to the defense of Formosa. That would cover the coastal islands.

Sen. Knowland (R. - Calif.) loosed a thinly veiled swipe at Secretary of State Dulles last night in reiterating his contention that Quemoy and Matsu must be held.

Dulles has said this country would not defend the coastal islands as such but would watch

Rosendale Boy Feared Drowned After Search

An all night search by a party of more than 100 men failed to disclose any trace of David Edge, five, who was feared drowned in the Rondout Creek at Rosendale Thursday afternoon.

Rosendale citizens, volunteer firemen and deputy sheriffs worked all night with grappling hooks and searched both banks of the creek, using portable lighting systems provided by fire departments from Rosendale and neighboring communities. The search was continued this morning.

THE CHILD was feared drowned after his toy gun was found on a rock protruding into the creek behind the Rosendale Post Office, and his hat was seen floating downstream.

Another, more hopeful theory, however, was that the child may have fallen into the creek and gotten wet, and then ran away to hide.

Both possibilities were being followed up, as searchers spread into the area and explored the creek banks and the area behind the buildings along Rosendale's Main street. At the same time, several boats were procured and grappling was in progress in the creek.

SWIFT CURRENT in the creek and a hard rain during the night added to the difficulties of the searching party.

The boy, son of Walter and Jean Edge, was last seen shortly after 3 p. m. going down toward the creek behind the Post Office in the village, according to a sheriff's office report.

A few minutes later, his toy gun was found and a hat, believed to be his, was seen floating downstream.

George Moylan notified the sheriff's office at 5:25 p. m., and deputies were sent to the area, later to be joined by Sheriff Cluett Schantz and Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg, who took charge.

MEANWHILE, Rosendale firemen were called out and joined the search under their fire department officers. Men and apparatus also came from Bloomington, Rifton and Tillson fire companies, with portable lighting systems set up to illuminate the entire creek area. Volunteer members of Cottekill and High Falls fire companies also joined the search.

The boy's parents were preparing to open a dress shop in the village, according to the sheriff's office information, and the child apparently had "run on ahead" of his mother when she was about to go to the village post office.

Water Problems in Ulster Told for Kiwanis Members

Water supply problems faced by Ulster county communities were discussed by Harry F. Edinger, director of environmental sanitation of the county health department, at a meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Thursday.

Ulster county, in common with much of the rest of the country, is experiencing difficulties in providing adequate water to meet increased residential and industrial needs, Edinger indicated. Changes since 1900 in the nation have put water supply facilities behind the needs of the nation, he said. These changes include the increase in population, and the suburbanization of communities.

Outlining the problems in the various communities of the area and the attempts being made to meet them, Edinger pointed out that planning must anticipate future needs because any water supply project takes from five to 10 years from the time of inception to completion.

Any solution that involves limitation of use of water would be "setting a top on the standard of living," Edinger warned.

Businessmen Will Organize Monday

Newly-elected members of the board of directors of the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the Court House and organize for the year. Officers will be elected and other business transacted.

Parking will be one of the problems to come up for discussion, it was stated by one of the directors. Closing of the Fair street entrance to the free parking lot back of North Front street, "has presented a problem," he said.

New directors elected at the annual meeting Wednesday night are: Adrian Kaplan, Vincent Burns, James Rowe, Oscar Lawatsch, Jack Short, Clyde Wonderly, Jr., Ed. Minasian, Joseph Scholar, Jr., Joseph Scott, Herbert Gertner, Charles Hoppe, Albert Flanagan, Norman Shapiro, Jay Melton and George Svirsky.

Head-Joined Siamese Girls Parted; Doctors Hopeful

Chicago, April 22 (AP) — The head-joined Andrews siamese twin girls were separated last night and surgeons are "guardedly optimistic" that both will survive.

Mercy Hospital said the girls had a restful sleep during the night and their condition was "good."

Never have two similarly linked twins survived separation.

Dr. Harold Voris, who headed the team of 14 doctors performing the operation, said it was completed in the relatively fast time of 4½ hours. This compared to 12 hours, 40 minutes required for separation of the famed Brodie twins in 1952. Rodney Brodie, now 3½, survived; Roger died 34 days after the separation.

Unlike the Brodies, the Andrews girls, Deborah Marie and Christine Mary, now nearly 7 months old, had separate sagittal sinuses. The veins which drain blood from the brain.

Dr. Voris said this fact was responsible for the operation's success.

He reported that, going into the operation, surgeons planned to complete it only if the twins retained sufficient strength.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John W. Barrett, director of Catholic hospitals in Chicago, said the separation was "touch-and-go" at times, with the girls rallying every time their strength began to ebb.

After the operation, the twins

A verdict of suicide was issued by Coroner Michael A. Galietta following investigation by him and state troopers. Death was due to strangulation, the coroner said.

Brinkley Gets Up To 3 Years in Jail

Ulie Brinkley, 89 South Manor avenue, who was placed on probation from county court following a shooting affair in the lower portion of the city when one, Richard Boggs was injured, found today it did not pay to violate probation.

He entered a plea of guilty to both the charges and was then sentenced to serve from 1½ to 3 years at hard labor in Clinton state prison. Attorney Louis G. Bruhn appeared for Brinkley.

A VERDICT for plaintiff in the sum of $250.45, the amount of damage to a car, was returned in a civil action brought by John G. Harriman Names of a Senate Judiciary Sumcommittee had sought testimony from Rabb as to his part in bringing Corsi, a prominent New York Republican, into the State Department.

Dismissed on Easter Sunday, Corsi has charged his ouster was engineered by a group which he said is "sabotaging" the administration's refugee relief program. Langer's subcommittee is looking into the charges.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said Langer invited Rabb to testify several days ago.

"The White House," Hagerty told reporters, "believes that confidential assistants to the President should not testify in regard to confidential matters in the White House offices or between the departments in the executive branch of the government."

HE ADDED that Langer was notified of this decision last night by Jack Martin, administrative assistant to the President.

Rabb is an associate counsel to Eisenhower in addition to being cabinet secretary. Martin is one of the congressional liaison aides.

Asked whether the decision to decline the invitation for Rabb's appearance before the Langer group was on presidential orders, Hagerty replied it was a White House decision, conforming to an executive order already on the books.

Corsi has testified that the first approach to him about taking a post in the State Department came from Rabb last November. He quoted Rabb as saying the refugee program needed pushing.

Nehru Assails

En-lai earlier had answered a Ceylonese anti-Communist blast with an appeal for harmony at the 29 nation conference. His tactic, ordinarily preferred among Asians to a spirited answer, failed to halt the developing deadlock.

The meeting of the nine-member subcommittee was closed to the public but delegates said the deadlock came over the resolution proposed by a group of nations headed by Iran, which wanted condemnation of colonialism "in any form."

CHOU REPORTEDLY opposed any mention which might be interpreted as an attack on communism. His stand was backed by India.

"It looks very much like we may have to pass over the resolution on colonialism," one delegate said. "That will put us on the spot—because the big issue of this conference is colonialism."

The resolution, proposed by Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Libya, Sudan, Liberia, Pakistan, Turkey and the Philippines, did not mention communism by name.

Late Bulletin

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

Chicago, April 22 (AP) — The Sewell L. Avery forces won the first skirmish over procedure today as the crucial annual meeting of Montgomery Ward & Co. shareholders got off to a noisy, squabbling start.

The Louis E. Wolfson group tried to block voting by stockholders while discussions were underway. However, John Barr, Ward's vice president, ruled that balloting could proceed during debate, as scheduled.

David Goodkind, a stockholder from Woodmeer, N. Y., said "wide publicity" over the battle between Wolfson and Avery for control of the 721 million dollar company had left a "great deal of confusion in the minds of stockholders."

were placed in separate cribs, where doctors and nurses kept a close watch on their conditions.

The twins' 33-year-old mother, Mrs. Wilfred J. Andrews, a Chicago registered nurse, received news that the separation was successful with:

"It's wonderful. I can hardly wait to see them in their cribs."

The father, 38, is a meat packing company salesman.

The Andrews have another daughter, Patricia, 5.

Yesterday's operation on the Andrews twins was to have been a preliminary one in preparation for the actual separation. However, Msgr. Barrett said, the operation proceeded so well that the surgeons decided to go ahead and complete the separation.

In addition to separate Sagittal sinuses, Dr. Voris said, each Andrew twin had a separate dura, the membranous covering of the brain beneath the skull cap. This, he added, helped reduce brain damage to a minimum in the operation.

He said skin from the babies' abdominal sections was used to cover exposed areas of their heads. Christine Mary, said to be the weaker of the two, was given a complete covering; Deborah Marie, an 80 per cent covering.

FURTHER SURGERY is planned to provide more permanent covering of skull areas, hospital officials said.

At their birth last Oct. 1, the twins were joined at the top of their heads. The back part of one twin's head was connected to the front of the other's at a slight angle.

In addition to the 14 doctors, including plastic surgeons as well as Dr. Voris and other neuro-surgeons, 10 to 15 technicians assisted in the delicate operation. A movie film was made of the entire operation.

National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said he was "very hopeful" the meeting would resolve the problem of equitable distribution.

Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh, developer of the vaccine, arrived last night to attend the conference and to receive a citation from President Eisenhower. "I've just come to listen," Salk said of the conference.

He and Basil O'Connor, head of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, had a White House appointment today to receive special presidential citations.

Secretary of Welfare Hobby called the conference, which was closed to the public and newsmen, in accordance with a directive from Eisenhower to survey and report to him on the best means of assuring equitable distribution of the paralysis preventive.

No agenda was announced, and it was not clear what conclusions might be made public —or when.

Later, James Truex, public relations director of the Public Works Department, said: "Inquiries are going on. Some of our men are being investigated. We don't know exactly what they (investigators) are looking for." He declined to elaborate.

While the official, E. C. Nickerson, was on the stand yesterday, the 1954 proxy fight for control of the Central figured in the proceedings.

Nickerson, vice president of the railroad's passenger service section, was asked by an attorney for commuter groups whether any of the $1,300,000 spent by Robert R. Young to gain control of the Central would be charged to the West Shore division.

TO THIS, Nickerson replied that the amount spent by the previous management in efforts to control the railroad were listed among last year's expenses.

Whether the West Shore Division would be required to pay for some of the proxy fight, Nickerson said he did not know. He did say, however, that the answer might be known by J. D. Haggerty, assistant comptroller who is expected to testify at a later date.

ACCORDING to Nickerson, Young borrowed the money for the control fight from his Allegheny Corp. The witness told the PUC that Young made it clear he expects the Central to repay him.

Cross-examination of further company witnesses was set for May 1, 12 and 13 by PUC President Mrs. Hortense Kessler.

Mrs. Kessler said the Teaneck sessions would be held from 1 to 4 p. m., and also during the evening starting at 7 p m.. The remainder of the commuter case will be held in Newark May 23, 24 and 25.

Western Railway, also there is pending a hearing before the Public Service Commission to modify the existing grade crossing elimination structures over the above branch railroad and a branch line of the New York Central Railroad on Washington avenue.

THE RESULT of these hearings will have a bearing on any solution for the location of the arterial street in the vicinity of Washington and Hurley avenues.

Since present department plans do not call for work on the Kingston arterial project this year, the disapproval of this bill will in no way hold up construction on the project.

Problems should be resolved in time for new bill to be introduced at next session of Legislature.

"THERE ARE SOME who believe that you can distinguish between a Communist assault on Quemoy and Matsu in and of themselves and Quemoy and Matsu as stepping stones toward Formosa," Knowland told the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) convention.

"What nonsense is this? When the assault is underway, are we to inquire . . . as to whether their assault is only for the possession of these outer ramparts?"

However, the entire county staff will man the control centers and operate as though an actual situation had occurred 48 hours previously. Fluorine Noted

Bernhardt S. Kramer, appointed by Acting Mayor Joseph Kelly to represent the city; John Schwenk of the Kingston Water Board; Dr. George Bushnell, representing the Ulster-Greene Dental Society; Dr. Joseph B. Kearney, dental advisor to the county health department; Arthur J. Laidlaw, Kingston superintendent of schools; Ambrose J. Boyd, principal of the George Washington School ,and Frieda L. Dingee, principal of School No. 7.

Commenting on early fears that the fluoridation of water would be injurious to general health, Dr. Edward R. Schlesinger, associate director of the Division of Medical Services of the State Health Department, told the group:

"All reports to date confirm earlier findings that water fluoridation has no demonstrable systematic or developmental effect on children except for the known dental benfits of reduction in tooth decay."

Dr. Morton L. Levine, assistant commissioner for medical services of the State Health Department, disclosed that the 10-year test cost about $300,000. The cost of fluoridation at Newburgh was about $3,000 a year, and the rest for salaries and materials for the examination of children and compilation of statistics, he said.

Thursday's report was described as a tentative, although well documented, report. The final, official, report is due later this year.

Brinkley Gets Up To 3 Years in Jail

Ulie Brinkley, 89 South Manor avenue, who was placed on probation from county court following a shooting affair in the lower portion of the city when one, Richard Boggs was injured, found today it did not pay to violate probation.

Arrested on a charge of having violated probation, Brinkley was charged with having been involved in a disorderly conduct charge and also driving a car while intoxicated. He entered a plea of guilty to both the charges and was then sentenced to serve from 1½ to 3 years at hard labor in Clinton state prison. Attorney Louis G. Bruhn appeared for Brinkley.

A VERDICT for plaintiff in the sum of $250.45, the amount of damage to a car, was returned in a civil action brought by John G. Reynolds of Lackawack against Mrs. Janet Stokes of Stone Ridge as the result of an accident at Hurley and Washington avenues. The jury returned the verdict Thursday afternoon. John Heilman, Jr., of Poughkeepsie appeared for plaintiff and Francis Tucker for Cook and Cook, attorneys for defendant.

A jury was taken in a contract action brought by Mary Garibaldi against Donald Murphy and the action was then settled. Michael Nardone for plaintiff and Thomas Saccoman for defendant.

Court recessed until 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Harriman Names

of a Senate Judiciary Sumcommittee had sought testimony from Rabb as to his part in bringing Corsi, a prominent New York Republican, into the State Department.

Dismissed on Easter Sunday, Corsi has charged his ouster was engineered by a group which he said is "sabotaging" the administration's refugee relief program. Langer's subcommittee is looking into the charges.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said Langer invited Rabb to testify several days ago.

"The White House," Hagerty told reporters, "believes that confidential assistants to the President should not testify in regard to confidential matters in the White House offices or between the departments in the executive branch of the government."

HE ADDED that Langer was notified of this decision last night by Jack Martin, administrative assistant to the President.

Rabb is an associate counsel to Eisenhower in addition to being cabinet secretary. Martin is one of the congressional liaison aides.

Asked whether the decision to decline the invitation for Rabb's appearance before the Langer group was on presidential orders, Hagerty replied it was a White House decision, conforming to an executive order already on the books.

Corsi has testified that the first approach to him about taking a post in the State Department came from Rabb last November. He quoted Rabb as saying the refugee program needed pushing.

Nehru Assails

En-lai earlier had answered a Ceylonese anti-Communist blast with an appeal for harmony at the 29 nation conference. His tactic, ordinarily preferred among Asians to a spirited answer, failed to halt the developing deadlock.

The meeting of the nine-member subcommittee was closed to the public but delegates said the deadlock came over the resolution proposed by a group of nations headed by Iran, which wanted condemnation of colonialism "in any form."

CHOU REPORTEDLY opposed any mention which might be interpreted as an attack on communism. His stand was backed by India.

"It looks very much like we may have to pass over the resolution on colonialism," one delegate said. "That will put us on the spot—because the big issue of this conference is colonialism."

The resolution, proposed by Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Libya, Sudan, Liberia, Pakistan, Turkey and the Philippines, did not mention communism by name.

Late Bulletin

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

Chicago, April 22 (AP) — The Sewell L. Avery forces won the first skirmish over procedure today as the crucial annual meeting of Montgomery Ward & Co. shareholders got off to a noisy, squabbling start.

The Louis E. Wolfson group tried to block voting by stockholders while discussions were underway. However, John Barr, Ward's vice president, ruled that balloting could proceed during debate, as scheduled.

David Goodkind, a stockholder from Woodmeer, N. Y., said "wide publicity" over the battle between Wolfson and Avery for control of the 721 million dollar company had left a "great deal of confusion in the minds of stockholders."

were placed in separate cribs, where doctors and nurses kept a close watch on their conditions.

The twins' 33-year-old mother, Mrs. Wilfred J. Andrews, a Chicago registered nurse, received news that the separation was successful with:

"It's wonderful. I can hardly wait to see them in their cribs."

The father, 38, is a meat packing company salesman.

The Andrews have another daughter, Patricia, 5.

Yesterday's operation on the Andrews twins was to have been a preliminary one in preparation for the actual separation. However, Msgr. Barrett said, the operation proceeded so well that the surgeons decided to go ahead and complete the separation.

In addition to separate Sagital sinuses, Dr. Voris said, each Andrew twin had a separate dura, the membranous covering of the brain beneath the skull cap. This, he added, helped reduce brain damage to a minimum in the operation.

He said skin from the babies' abdominal sections was used to cover exposed areas of their heads. Christine Mary, said to be the weaker of the two, was given a complete covering; Deborah Marie, an 80 per cent covering.

FURTHER SURGERY is planned to provide more permanent covering of skull areas, hospital officials said.

At their birth last Oct. 1, the twins were joined at the top of their heads. The back part of one twin's head was connected to the front of the other's at a slight angle.

In addition to the 14 doctors, including plastic surgeons as well as Dr. Voris and other neuro-surgeons, 10 to 15 technicians assisted in the delicate operation. A movie film was made of the entire operation.

National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said he was "very hopeful" the meeting would resolve the problem of equitable distribution.

Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh, developer of the vaccine, arrived last night to attend the conference and to receive a citation from President Eisenhower. "I've just come to listen," Salk said of the conference.

He and Basil O'Connor, head of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, had a White House appointment today to receive special presidential citations.

Secretary of Welfare Hobby called the conference, which was closed to the public and newsmen, in accordance with a directive from Eisenhower to survey and report to him on the best means of assuring equitable distribution of the paralysis preventive.

No agenda was announced, and it was not clear what conclusions might be made public —or when.

firmed, that the investigation also has hit some outside contractors, who have been questioned over past dealings with the department and contracts."

Later, James Truex, public relations director of the Public Works Department, said: "Inquiries are going on. Some of our men are being investigated. We don't know exactly what they (investigators) are looking for." He declined to elaborate.

Under the law, the state commissioner of investigations is privileged to withhold information on any inquiry his office conducts unless the governor directs disclosure.

The first train to Weehawken starts from here at 6:15 a. m., the next leaves at 1:30 p. m., one arrives from Albany at 4:40 p. m., and the last from Albany arrives here at 7:50 p. m., going through to Weehawken.

While the official, E. C. Nickerson, was on the stand yesterday, the 1954 proxy fight for control of the Central figured in the proceedings.

Nickerson, vice president of the railroad's passenger service section, was asked by an attorney for commuter groups whether any of the $1,300,000 spent by Robert R. Young to gain control of the Central would be charged to the West Shore division.

TO THIS, Nickerson replied that the amount spent by the previous management in efforts to control the railroad were listed among last year's expenses.

Whether the West Shore Division would be required to pay for some of the proxy fight, Nickerson said he did not know. He did say, however, that the answer might be known by J. D. Haggerty, assistant comptroller who is expected to testify at a later date.

ACCORDING to Nickerson, Young borrowed the money for the control fight from his Allegheny Corp. The witness told the PUC that Young made it clear he expects the Central to repay him.

Cross-examination of further company witnesses was set for May 1, 12 and 13 by PUC President Mrs. Hortense Kessler.

Mrs. Kessler said the Teaneck sessions would be held from 1 to 4 p. m., and also during the evening starting at 7 p m.. The remainder of the commuter case will be held in Newark May 23, 24 and 25.

Western Railway, also there is pending a hearing before the Public Service Commission to modify the existing grade crossing elimination structures over the above branch railroad and a branch line of the New York Central Railroad on Washington avenue.

THE RESULT of these hearings will have a bearing on any solution for the location of the arterial street in the vicinity of Washington and Hurley avenues.

Since present department plans do not call for work on the Kingston arterial project this year, the disapproval of this bill will in no way hold up construction on the project.

Problems should be resolved in time for new bill to be introduced at next session of Legislature.

"THERE ARE SOME who believe that you can distinguish between a Communist assault on Quemoy and Matsu in and of themselves and Quemoy and Matsu as stepping stones toward Formosa," Knowland told the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) convention.

"What nonsense is this? When the assault is underway, are we to inquire . . . as to whether their assault is only for the possession of these outer ramparts?"

The Californian, GOP Senate leader, has strongly urged a U. S. commitment to help defend the coastal islands, held by Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists.

NO ALERTING calls will be made by key point warning centers and there will be no public participation. However, the entire county staff will man the control centers and operate as though an actual situation had occurred 48 hours previously. Fluorine Noted

Bernhardt S. Kramer, appointed by Acting Mayor Joseph Kelly to represent the city; John Schwenk of the Kingston Water Board; Dr. George Bushnell, representing the Ulster-Greene Dental Society; Dr. Joseph B. Kearney, dental advisor to the county health department; Arthur J. Laidlaw, Kingston superintendent of schools; Ambrose J. Boyd, principal of the George Washington School and Frieda L. Dingee, principal of School No. 7.

Commenting on early fears that the fluoridation of water would be injurious to general health, Dr. Edward R. Schlesinger, associate director of the Division of Medical Services of the State Health Department, told the group:

"All reports to date confirm earlier findings that water fluoridation has no demonstrable systematic or developmental effect on children except for the known dental benfits of reduction in tooth decay."

Dr. Morton L. Levine, assistant commissioner for medical services of the State Health Department, disclosed that the 10-year test cost about $300,000. The cost of fluoridation at Newburgh was about $3,000 a year, and the rest for salaries and materials for the examination of children and compilation of statistics, he said.

Thursday's report was described as a tentative, although well documented, report. The final, official, report is due later this year.

Building Boom, Autos Could Ruffle Economy

New York, April 22 (AP)—Booming business breeds optimism. So today industrial chieftains are sticking their necks out a little farther and predicting that good times will carry over into the fall and maybe into next year.

At the same time the warning voices of the cautious are growing louder.

Bankers, for instance, admit that the building boom shows every sign of making this the biggest construction year. But they warn that if the nation over-builds, and gets too far into debt while doing it, the whole economy might be shaken.

SPREADING labor strife also worries many industrial executives. Bitter strikes plague some companies in the chemical, textile, telephone, railroad and electronics fields. The threat of a work stoppage still hangs over the booming auto and steel industries.

And the more glowing the reports of increased profits and prospects of still higher earnings, the more likely labor leaders may be to raise their demands.

Students of the Detroit story point to the big backlog of orders for new cars which the auto makers have from their dealers. Production schedules are for full steam ahead for weeks to come.

BUT FOR almost every new model that takes to the highway, an older, turned-in model has gone onto a used car lot. If the approach of the top driving season brings the customers into the used car lots in volume, all will be well.

Gasoline stocks are also sizably larger than a year ago. This has sparked gas price wars in a number of places across the land. Here, too, the approach of warm weather is awaited — and with confidence by oil producers who look for about a five per cent gain in consumption this year.

BUSINESS confidence is sparking some supplier industries. Makers of the goods that manufacturers buy—heavy machinery, tools, parts, right on down to cotter pins—are predicting that sales this year should run higher than last by around 10 per cent.

Plans for new plant construction and purchase of new equipment are being increased as a result of the business boom. Corporations now are expected to spend considerably more this year for expansion than was predicted a few months back.

Construction contracts so far this year have been awarded at a record rate. This should keep the building boom going for months. The amount of money lent so far this year for new homes has jumped almost a third over last year.

AT THE SAME time, the total of savings seems to berising. Savings banks report increased deposits. Life insurance companies say sales are up 15 per cent over last year.

And the U. S. Treasury is getting the windfall. With business good and individual incomes higher, tax payments have also risen above the level anticipated when the budget was set up. So the federal deficit may be a little lower than first thought.

The business scene couldn't look pleasanter on the whole. Some steel mills are booking orders for the third quarter. Copper producers look for big demand and tight supplies for several months more. Electric power production is running 15 per cent higher than last year. Even coal companies predict a 12 per cent gain in their business this year.

It couldn't look brighter—if it weren't for those few, small dark clouds.

Here's a Play to Test Your Savvy

"What should I have done with the South hand?" asks a Dallas correspondent. "I suspected that I was in trouble when East passed the double of one heart, but I didn't know how to wriggle out. I wasn't sure that a redouble would clearly demand a rescue by North; and if there was any chance that North would pass I certainly didn't want to redouble. I finally decided to pass and take my chances at one heart doubled.

"The defense was accurate, and I took only my three top trumps and my ace of clubs. West opened the king of clubs, holding the trick, and switched to the king of spades. East overtook with the ace of spades to return the jack of hearts.

"I won with the ace of hearts, cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club in dummy. East overruffed and led the three of hearts to force out my king of trumps. I led a low diamond, trying to sneak the trick by, but West stepped up with the ace of diamonds, cashed the queen of spades, and led another diamond.

"East ruffed and led another trump to force out my queen. Now there was no way to stop East from taking the rest of the tricks. I lost 800 points on a hand that was fairly safe at two diamonds, but the question is how to get to that contract."

Most experts play a redouble in this position as demanding a takeout. When you're not sure that your partner will understand the redouble, you get on your bicycle and pedal away for dear life.

In this case the way to start the rescue operation is with a bid of one no-trump. Your partner will know that you are trying to get out and that you are weakish in spades (since you skipped over one spade in order to bid one no-trump). Hence he will bid two diamonds, with the actual North hand, and you will be off the hook.

Hurley Elm Tree Judged Winner In State Contest

An elm tree on the premises of Dr. Alfred W. Harder at Hurley has been judged the largest in circumference in the state of New York in a contest sponsored by the New York State Arborist Association. The tree, estimated by Professor A. M. S. Privham, professor of horticulture at Cornell University, as about 200 years old is 23 feet 9 inches in circumference at "waist high" measurement.

THE TREE was entered in the statewide contest by Frank Miller of Arborial Associates, who resides in Hurley. Entered in the contest were elm trees from all over the state which had been entered by 4-H Club members and school children in an effort to find the largest elm in the state. There were between 40 and 50 trees entered. Measurements were checked by Prof. Privham and the tree on the Harder premises was found to be the winner in the contest.

A tree recently removed from the corner of Fair and Main street by the Old Dutch Church was over 16 feet in circumference and at that time there was considerable interest as to the age of the tree. Prof. Privham, who viewed the stump, estimates that tree was approximately 200 years old or approximately the same age as the tree in Hurley.

Passed on Party Lines

Hartford, Conn., April 22 (AP)—Debating and voting along party lines, Connecticut's Senate has passed an administration bill authorizing state purchase of land along controlled-access highways. Senate Democrats yesterday pushed through the measure, part of Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff's economic development program, after it drew Republican criticisms including the label "socialistic."

Atoms-for-Peace Plan of President Scored by DAR

Washington, April 22 (AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution Thursday condemned President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan.

The President in a United Nations speech Dec. 8, 1953, proposed creation of an international atomic pool, with a stock of fissionable materials, to aid in development of peaceable uses of nuclear energy. He urged the step to reverse "the fearful trend" of the atomic arms race.

SINCE THEN the proposal has been watered down to one for a clearing house for peacetime atomic information.

The DAR in convention here did not mention the Eisenhower plan as such.

But without discussion and amid applause it unanimously adopted a resolution urging "immediate abandonment of all such plans."

The resolution declares a DAR belief that the pooling of atomic information and resources among nations constituting the UN would have the effect of "investing in immeasurable potentials for the destruction of the United States of America by its openly avowed enemies."

FURTHER, the resolution says such pooling would "result in the accumulation of unlimited physical energy by an international oligarchy."

It contends that this oligarchy "would be enabled to hold all nations of the world in terror and achieve such a tyranny as has never before been witnessed in human history."

The resolution calls for this country instead to concentrate its effort on "further study of application of all available measures for the protection of our nation against the facilities which our enemies have already acquired, and when they deem it expedient, will unhestitatingly employ."

IN OTHER resolutions, the DAR asked Congress to allow the reciprocal trade agreements law to expire this June, and urged that all foreign aid be reduced as quickly as possible. It proposed that these "billions of American tax dollars" now going abroad be used instead to reduce the national debt.

The delegates asked Congress to investigate tax exempt foundations, contending that many such organizations subverting American youth by directing education towards an international viewpoint.

ONLY ONE voice, lost in the big audience, was heard voting "no" on a resolution reaffirming the DAR's "adamant stand" against federal aid to education.

Unanimously the delegates opposed any change in the McCarran-Walter Immigration and Nationality Act.

The DAR objected to changing the name of Constitution Day, Sept. 17, to "Citizenship Day," on the ground that it would emphasize the "world citizen" idea.

Asks for Alternative

Harrisburg, Pa., April 22 (AP)—Sen. Joseph M. Barr, Democratic state chairman, today challenged Republican critics of the administration's proposed tax program to come forth with an alternative. "Nowhere in the sound and fury of their attacks is there any emergency proposal for an alternative tax plan," Barr said in a statement.

Loyal but Over Zealous

New York, April 22 (AP)—Rocky the Boxer is a loyal dog but overzealous. He fought off two policemen and bit one as they sought to help his master, who collapsed yesterday on a Manhattan street. After the dog's owner, William Thomas, 43, became ill, Rocky stood over him and growled at anyone who came near. One patrolman grasped the dog's collar and was bitten on the hand and forearm. An ASPCA agent, wearing leather gloves, got Rocky away from his master so they could take him to a hospital.

Building Boom, Autos Could Ruffle Economy

New York, April 22 (AP)—Booming business breeds optimism. So today industrial chieftains are sticking their necks out a little farther and predicting that good times will carry over into the fall and maybe into next year.

At the same time the warning voices of the cautious are growing louder.

Bankers, for instance, admit that the building boom shows every sign of making this the biggest construction year. But they warn that if the nation over-builds, and gets too far into debt while doing it, the whole economy might be shaken.

SPREADING labor strife also worries many industrial executives. Bitter strikes plague some companies in the chemical, textile, telephone, railroad and electronics fields. The threat of a work stoppage still hangs over the booming auto and steel industries.

And the more glowing the reports of increased profits and prospects of still higher earnings, the more likely labor leaders may be to raise their demands.

Students of the Detroit story point to the big backlog of orders for new cars which the auto makers have from their dealers. Production schedules are for full steam ahead for weeks to come.

BUT FOR almost every new model that takes to the highway, an older, turned-in model has gone onto a used car lot. If the approach of the top driving season brings the customers into the used car lots in volume, all will be well.

Gasoline stocks are also sizably larger than a year ago. This has sparked gas price wars in a number of places across the land. Here, too, the approach of warm weather is awaited — and with confidence by oil producers who look for about a five per cent gain in consumption this year.

BUSINESS confidence is sparking some supplier industries. Makers of the goods that manufacturers buy—heavy machinery, tools, parts, right on down to cotter pins—are predicting that sales this year should run higher than last by around 10 per cent.

Plans for new plant construction and purchase of new equipment are being increased as a result of the business boom. Corporations now are expected to spend considerably more this year for expansion than was predicted a few months back.

Construction contracts so far this year have been awarded at a record rate. This should keep the building boom going for months. The amount of money lent so far this year for new homes has jumped almost a third over last year.

AT THE SAME time, the total of savings seems to berising. Savings banks report increased deposits. Life insurance companies say sales are up 15 per cent over last year.

And the U. S. Treasury is getting the windfall. With business good and individual incomes higher, tax payments have also risen above the level anticipated when the budget was set up. So the federal deficit may be a little lower than first thought.

The business scene couldn't look pleasanter on the whole. Some steel mills are booking orders for the third quarter. Copper producers look for big demand and tight supplies for several months more. Electric power production is running 15 per cent higher than last year. Even coal companies predict a 12 per cent gain in their business this year.

It couldn't look brighter—if it weren't for those few, small dark clouds.

"What should I have done with the South hand?" asks a Dallas correspondent. "I suspected that I was in trouble when East passed the double of one heart, but I didn't know how to wriggle out. I wasn't sure that a redouble would clearly demand a rescue by North; and if there was any chance that North would pass I certainly didn't want to redouble. I finally decided to pass and take my chances at one heart doubled.

"The defense was accurate, and I took only my three top trumps and my ace of clubs. West opened the king of clubs, holding the trick, and switched to the king of spades. East overtook with the ace of spades to return the jack of hearts.

"I won with the ace of hearts, cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed a club in dummy. East overruffed and led the three of hearts to force out my king of trumps. I led a low diamond, trying to sneak the trick by, but West stepped up with the ace of diamonds, cashed the queen of spades, and led another diamond.

"East ruffed and led another trump to force out my queen. Now there was no way to stop East from taking the rest of the tricks. I lost 800 points on a hand that was fairly safe at two diamonds, but the question is how to get to that contract."

Most experts play a redouble in this position as demanding a takeout. When you're not sure that your partner will understand the redouble, you get on your bicycle and pedal away for dear life.

In this case the way to start the rescue operation is with a bid of one no-trump. Your partner will know that you are trying to get out and that you are weakish in spades (since you skipped over one spade in order to bid one no-trump). Hence he will bid two diamonds, with the actual North hand, and you will be off the hook.

Hurley Elm Tree Judged Winner In State Contest

An elm tree on the premises of Dr. Alfred W. Harder at Hurley has been judged the largest in circumference in the state of New York in a contest sponsored by the New York State Arborist Association. The tree, estimated by Professor A. M. S. Privham, professor of horticulture at Cornell University, as about 200 years old is 23 feet 9 inches in circumference at "waist high" measurement.

THE TREE was entered in the statewide contest by Frank Miller of Arborial Associates, who resides in Hurley. Entered in the contest were elm trees from all over the state which had been entered by 4-H Club members and school children in an effort to find the largest elm in the state. There were between 40 and 50 trees entered. Measurements were checked by Prof. Privham and the tree on the Harder premises was found to be the winner in the contest.

A tree recently removed from the corner of Fair and Main street by the Old Dutch Church was over 16 feet in circumference and at that time there was considerable interest as to the age of the tree, Prof. Privham, who viewed the stump, estimates that tree was approximately 200 years old or approximately the same age as the tree in Hurley.

Passed on Party Lines

Hartford, Conn., April 22 (AP)—Debating and voting along party lines, Connecticut's Senate has passed an administration bill authorizing state purchase of land along controlled-access highways. Senate Democrats yesterday pushed through the measure, part of Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff's economic development program, after it drew Republican criticisms including the label "socialistic."

Atoms-for-Peace Plan of President Scored by DAR

Washington, April 22 (AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution Thursday condemned President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan.

The President in a United Nations speech Dec. 8, 1953, proposed creation of an international atomic pool, with a stock of fissionable materials, to aid in development of peaceable uses of nuclear energy. He urged the step to reverse "the fearful trend" of the atomic arms race.

SINCE THEN the proposal has been watered down to one for a clearing house for peacetime atomic information.

The DAR in convention here did not mention the Eisenhower plan as such.

But without discussion and amid applause it unanimously adopted a resolution urging "immediate abandonment of all such plans."

The resolution declares a DAR belief that the pooling of atomic information and resources among nations constituting the UN would have the effect of "investing in immeasurable potentials for the destruction of the United States of America by its openly avowed enemies."

FURTHER, the resolution says such pooling would "result in the accumulation of unlimited physical energy by an international oligarchy."

It contends that this oligarchy "would be enabled to hold all nations of the world in terror and achieve such a tyranny as has never before been witnessed in human history."

The resolution calls for this country instead to concentrate its effort on "further study of application of all available measures for the protection of our nation against the facilities which our enemies have already acquired, and when they deem it expedient, will unhestitatingly employ."

IN OTHER resolutions, the DAR asked Congress to allow the reciprocal trade agreements law to expire this June, and urged that all foreign aid be reduced as quickly as possible. It proposed that these "billions of American tax dollars" now going abroad be used instead to reduce the national debt.

EXPLORER IN THOUGHT

The mind of Albert Einstein traveled in areas of thought where man had never explored before. He sought knowledge with the same instinct that makes men breathe—because it was necessary to his existence.

In 1945 the age of the atom was christened with the mushrooming cloud over Hiroshima—it was an age he had midwifed in 1922 when he articulated his theory of relativity. It is ironic that this humane and gentle man, dedicated to the search for a deeper understanding of the physical world around him, should have played a part in creating the most powerful instrument of destruction ever known.

That this was so was a source of sorrow to Einstein. Yet he would have been the last to use it as an excuse for ceasing scientific inquiry. He knew that intellectual courage is an essential of human progress and he had faith in the rationality of mankind. Even as he probed the secrets of nature, so did he try to find the answers to the seeming paradoxes in human nature. Once he said: "The solution of men's problems lies in men's hearts."

His contributions will be studied with those of the great men of other centuries and as times passes he may even come to seem an almost contemporary of the Aristotles, the Euclids, the others who ventured beyond the frontiers of knowledge in their own day. Our century was blessed indeed in giving him birth.

NATURE STILL RULES

Apparently nowhere in the grand Communist scheme is there a place for the unexpected workings of nature. The Soviet, pressed hard for food and grain, has begun purges among agricultural officials. In a drastic recent move, 30,000 of Russia's 90,000 directors of collective farms were ordered replaced. Such sweeping condemnations indicate the degree of desperation the food problem has produced.

Last week two state farm directors were fired and ordered to make good a loss in cattle that died, it was said, from neglect. Although the extent of the losses was not disclosed, the wild winter storms of Russia take tens of thousands of livestock every year. Comrade Citizen is supposed to believe it was not the prolonged icy blasts, but men deliberately persecuting the people who wantonly killed the cattle.

The agricultural purges may help reveal the fantasy the Communist bosses have long been weaving to the Soviet people. Blizzards and storms and nature's cold are things all Russians know. To blame men for nature's caprices may seem to many a peasant and comrade a word of straw in a Moscow made wind.

The true executive, a business analyst states, is one who "can make a smoothly functioning team out of people with many different skills." Now we can understand why mother is usually the chief executive of the home.

TALGO TRAIN

A Talgo can haul a cargo cheaper than any other locomotive. So say the sponsors of a new type of light train which originated not in the United States, the traditional birthplace of new inventions, but in Spain, popularly supposed to be sluggish and behind the times. Talgo trains have already been ordered by the Rock Island Railroad, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford has asked to use the demonstrator train, believing that it might cut the time for trains between Boston and New York from five hours or thereabouts to two and a half.

The Talgo looks something like a caterpillar. It is a series of short, compact units, each with a pair of wheels at the rear and supported at the front by the rear end of the preceding unit. It has been compared to a series of short, trailer units, "each riding piggy-back on the one ahead." Its main features are light weight and low center of gravity. Cars are only one-quarter to one-third as long as ordinary railroad coaches, resulting in approximately 75 per cent less dead weight per passenger.

The railroads, as most of them privately admit, are seriously threatened by the bus, plane and, even more, by the private automobile. If they are to survive, they must cut costs drastically. Perhaps the Talgo is the answer.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE ANCIENT SPOKESMAN

It has long been a device for statesmen to use journalists to test out public opinion by trial balloons. Often the statesman is too cowardly to say what is on his mind so he uses an anonymous "spokesman," or a "high official source," or a "well-informed person."

What this means is that the statesman leaks a story to someone and assumes no responsibility for it. Theodore Roosevelt had a way of calling the person to whom he leaked a liar if the thing went badly. In recent years, Drew Pearson has been called liar by some of the most distinguished gentlemen in the nation and perhaps he will one day write his reminiscences and tell all. It may appear that those who so surely employed their high offices to establish him as a liar leaked the news to him originally. I do not know.

The Corsi Case is in point. Whoever handled it for the State Department, at the start, leaked the news, employing the device of the anonymous "spokesman." As such leaks have come to have the reputation of being irresponsible, the State Department, which had a good case, gave the appearance of having a bad case. From a straight public relations standpoint, it would have been sounder for the State Department to have issued an official statement to the press setting forth its side of the Corsi affairs, pointing to the fact that Corsi is so much an individualist that he does not fit into an organization unless he heads it, that he takes upon himself authorities beyond his responsibility, with such details as may be warranted. As it is, all this is coming out anyhow, but in a manner which does not help anyone connected with the case.

An editor writes me:

". . . An editor who would discard at sight a scurrilous but anonymous letter, will print almost any sort of a personal attack so long as it is attributed to a 'spokesman' or some such individual who lacks the guts to face the man he is accusing."

The business of a reporter is to get the news and with the current black-out in practically all departments of government, many reporters grasp at straws, in the sense that if a great statesman seems to give them an off-the-record leak or a story that can be attributed to a "spokesman," they take it because their business is to get the news however they can.

One of the best ways of suppressing a story is to give it off-the-record. Most of the so-called background conferences are really efforts to kill a story. Everybody is sworn to secrecy. The best way to get such a story, however disguised, it not to attend the background conference, to get whatever one can from other sources and to let the public know what goes on. That is why so many columnists prefer not to attend background conferences. They feel that it is their duty to get the information to the people, not to pledge themselves not to give the information to the people.

It is perhaps all in the point of view. Some reporters feel that close proximity to greatness is a virtue all its own. Somehow something of the statesman is bound to rub off in moments of social relationships. This is particularly true of younger men who appraise greatness by the kind of job a man holds. As one matures in this struggle for news, one learns that the measure of a man is his character, not the job he may hold. The job may come to him for all sorts of reasons, including nothing better than that he has always been on the public payroll and is popular with a factional so-called minority group whose votes may count for something in an election. No question of ability or character is involved, only what the gangster calls connections. And the connections may not always be to the best interests of the United States.

If the "spokesman" could be killed off, the news would be better, provided we also killed the "authoritative source," and the "official source," and a lot of other devices to avoid responsibility. The people ought to have all the news with a name authoring the data when it is government inspired. Otherwise the news may not be news at all. It may be propaganda.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

WHAT IS ASTHMA?

I write frequently about asthma because there are so many people suffering from this distressing ailment — about one in every seventy-five, it has been estimated.

What is asthma? Asthma is difficulty in breathing, a choking caused by obstruction of the small bronchial tubes, either by swelling of the membrane lining the tubes, or by contraction of the muscles around the tubes, or by plugging of the tubes by mucus. As a result, the lungs become distended, breathing becomes increasingly difficult, the chest swells, there are wheezing noises, the neck muscles strain, the veins become swollen, and the sufferer, as a rule, cannot lie down.

The suffering is severe; it may last for a few minutes, hours or for days and even weeks. Asthma may occur in frequent spells or may become continuous but is rarely fatal.

What causes asthma? There are several kinds of asthma, depending upon the cause. One type is found in older persons and is associated with heart trouble. Many other cases of asthma are caused by a bacteria or virus (a very tiny organism) infection involving the sinuses, throat and bronchi.

By far the most common type of asthma is the kind produced by allergy. Allergy is a condition of sensitivity which certain persons develop to substances, ordinarily harmless to the rest of the population. These substances may be taken into the body by being inhaled in the air, by being swallowed, by contact on the skin, or being injected. All these sensitizing substances are called "allergens" and can produce allergic symptoms, though not all cause asthma.

The allergen most commonly causing asthma is pollen, the tiny powdery particles given off by flowering plants and trees. For the most part, this pollen is from ragweed, thistle, sagebrush, and such common trees as oak, elm, maple, ash, birch and others which have light pollen easily carried in the air.

Next to pollen in importance as a source of allergy are the spores or tiny seeds of molds which grow in great profusion in grains and grasses, leaves of bushes and trees, and in the soil. They are smaller than pollen and also air-carried.

Other inhaled substances which can cause asthma are house dust, animal dandruff, cosmetics, insect dust and dust from occupations such as milling and farming.

Foods and drugs also can cause asthma but not in as many cases as are found in pollen and molds.

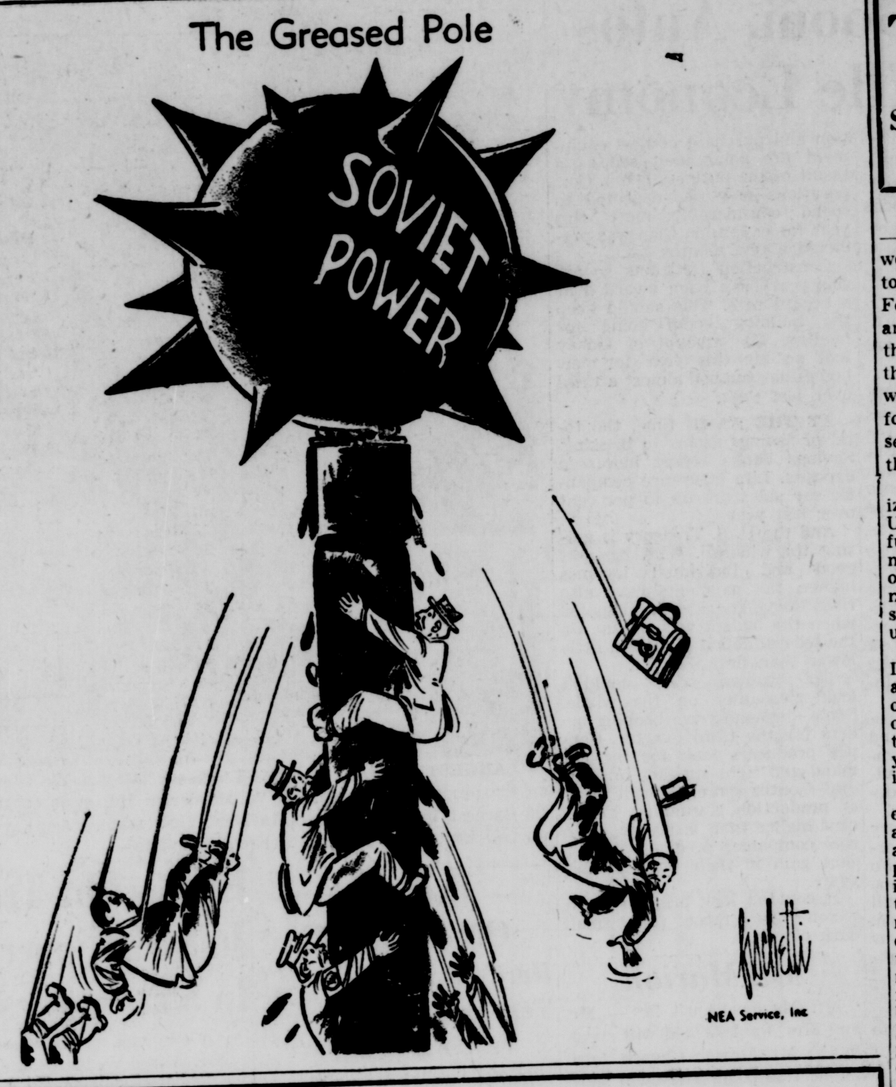

Tomorrow we will consider what your doctor can do for you if you are an asthmatic.

The Greased Pole

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — Authority to establish full economic controls over prices, wages and credit in case of emergency war mobilization will be requested from Congress by the Eisenhower administration within the next month.

The occasion for this reversal of Republican policy will be Defense Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming's appearance before Banking and Currency Committees.

He will ask for extension of the Defense Production Act, which is due to expire June 30, 1955. Amendments will be offered to give the government broad new authority for emergency economic controls.

The government has not had this authority since the economic stabilization sections of the Defense Production act of 1950 expired in 1953.

ONE OF PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S FIRST acts after coming to the White House was to end price and wage controls.

This was in compliance with the Republican platform pledge of 1952. The Administration was committed to a free economy.

Last December, however, Edward F. Phelps, Jr., was brought into ODM as Director for Stabilization. His assignment was to develop plans for stepped-up or all-out mobilization.

Mr. Phelps had served as director of the Food Price division of OPA in World War II. During the Korean emergency, he was director of Price Operations in OPS.

While most of the officials who had anything to do with either of those unlamented organizations got burned, Mr. Phelps is back for more. His experience in two wars makes him a natural choice for the new stabilization planning.

He has, however, had to start from scratch. The authority for the Korean war price and wage and stabilization program was allowed to expire in 1953.

THERE IS NO LAW ON the books now which would permit the President to freeze prices and wages and credits, though some people think he might do it under his inherent, Constitutional powers.

Also, Mr. Phelps is faced today with an entirely new set of conditions in trying to draft stabilization legislation for a future emergency.

The U. S. economy was running at a rate of under $100 billion a year gross national product in 1940. Today it is $365 billion. Controls today would have a far greater impact on the economy.

A second new problem is created by the atomic bomb threat. Trying to discover what the economic consequences of an H-bomb blast would be, and trying to make allowances for them in stabilization laws involves some brand new calculations that even an electronic brain can't make.

One of the political principles that Mr. Phelps has to consider in his planning is that the Eisenhower administration would like to use indirect controls, primarily.

THIS MEANS using taxes and credit controls to prevent inflation, rather than direct price and wage controls which deal more with the effects of inflation.

It is fully recognized, however, that for all-out war and mobilization, indirect controls will not do the job. The nation's tax bill is now over $90 billion a year. Adding $50 billion a year to this to finance a war and control inflation has its limitations.

The whole complex of price and wage controls, along with some new ones that haven't been thought of before will have to be used if there is another war. This being the case, the planning job that Mr. Phelps and his ODM staff are now working on involves improving the techniques of the last two wars and trying to avoid all the horrible mistakes of OPS and OPA.

The climate for getting Congress to approve this program is now believed to be better. This is not an election year, so it won't be a political issue.

The threat of a new war in the Orient has made more people realize that a complete stabilization plan has to be in the law books, ready for instant use if needed.

Waiting till the shooting starts and then trying to improvise, as in 1950, won't work. And any idea that the Republican administration won't go for stand-by price and wage controls is wrong, says Mr. Phelps.

Setting for War or Peace Really in Europe Instead of Asia With Area Troubles

By DAVID LAWRENCE

En route to Europe, April 22—The answer to the greatest worry of the American people today is somewhere in Europe. For, while the problems of Asia are often acute and threatening, they are after all only a part of the checkerboard of Europe where the real struggle goes on for a balance of power that can set the stage for or prevent a third world war.

To a degree perhaps unrealized by many people in the United States, the life and the future business welfare of the nation now is dependent on the outcome of those European maneuvers that seek some form of security but which history tells us have often led to war.

No one capital—Moscow or London—is able to supply the answer. For a crisis can come out of events in Italy or France or even out of the Balkan States that now are under the Soviet yoke. The whole situation is interrelated.

Does, for example, the new effort by Soviet Russia to make a deal with Austria foreshadow another move to appeal to the people of West Germany? For it is obviously Moscow's game to grant a form of independence not only to Austria but some day to a reunited Germany. It's the battle over a rearmed Germany and her future that causes real concern. Will Moscow ever be content until she has somehow gotten a tight hold on Germany through either economic or political ties?

Also is it to be assumed that the Soviet has given up hope of recovering Yugoslavia and presenting Italians with a worry on their northern border as Communists inside Italy keep up their unremitting propaganda which continues to exploit conditions of poverty?

These are questions that confront the western powers as they prepare to rearm Germany. If the western alliance were solid and invincible, instead of wavering and volatile due to internal dissensions and the poisons of political-party strife, there would be less hope for Moscow to realize her ambitions.

But the weaknesses of Britain, France, Germany and Italy cannot be glossed over. Precisely because some of the statesmen there know this, they grow uneasy when an Asian crisis arises which could divert to the Far East some of the manpower and supplies that might be needed to defend Europe.

To survey some of these situations, this writer plans to visit the principal countries of the Western Alliance. It is conceded that Marshall Plan aid has saved Europe from economic chaos. But there is as yet no plan or prescription to save Europe from the follies of its politicians.

There are elections coming in Great Britain. Maybe also there will be an election soon in Italy. The French parliamentary situation is fragile.

Curiously enough, only Spain has political stability, and it is on Spain that American military planners are placing great reliance, with bases there along the Mediterranean that can be used by the United States Air Force and the United States Navy, the American people have been paying for an alternative bastion—one that can be relied upon if the bases in Britain and France should some day be withheld from our use. This could result either because of fear of atomic reprisals from Moscow or because of an ill-conceived program of appeasement of Soviet Russia which has its progenitor in present-day talk of "peaceful co-existence."

It is not to be overlooked that the British Labor party insists that the British government must hold a veto over the possible use of the atom bomb by American forces stationed in England. If the Parliament has to debate whether planes carrying the atom bomb shall be started from British airfields toward Russian territory once an attack has come to some part of the United States, the delay might be a fatal one. Yet involved in these very political uncertainties is the fate of the American people and their capacity to retaliate in an atomic war.

In these days when a journey to Europe by ship is just a long week end and by air is only overnight, the opportunity is given without loss of much time to cross the Atlantic and make a firsthand examination of the factors that can mean unbalanced budgets, continued high taxes, and military service for American youth at almost a moment's notice. For in Europe with Soviet Russia stretching her authority over a vast area is the key to many an American problem of legislative policy.

Old Enough for Guns

Wallingford, Conn. (AP)—"You don't look 21," Edwin E. Cowen told two youths who ordered a quart of beer at his liquor store. When Cowen asked them for proof of age, one of the youths reached into his pocket for a revolver. The pair fled with $25 in cash from Cowen's wallet and cash register.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

There is a deadly parallel between the cynical avarice of the sitting United States Congress and those executives of our giant corporations who have abused their power to vote themselves great pensions and bonuses at the expense of the common man. In both cases, the offense is embezzlement but under legal conditions. This Congress was elected to serve stated terms, two years for congressmen, six for senators, at an agreed price of $15,000, plus perrequisites. Immediately after convening, these men set about repudiating their contract by raising their pay about 50 per cent. That is a big raise which, taken as a precedent for all employed persons, would wreck the financial system.

Corporation executives have been doing this for 20 years. They are so greedy and so contemptuous toward the ordinary investors who provide the "venture capital" that hardly a corporation report these days fails to dwell on their annuities or pensions, always on a lavish scale. Ordinary investors are notified that they will have to provide such pensions for men drawing salaries up to $100,000 a year, and usually for their surviving wives and other dependents. Like the members of Congress, these executives set their own salaries. And the members of Congress, like the corporation executives, set their own pension rates.

The public had little knowledge of the congressional pension system, but it is very generous. By its very lavishness, as compared with social security old-age pensions, it reflects the contempt of these politicians for the citizens who pay the taxes to pay those pensions. An ordinary worker may draw $20 a week on retirement at $65, provided he does not get caught earning more than $40 a week. Congressional pensioners may draw $150 a week or more and earn all they can. The system is so complex that service as sheriff or commissioner of sewers in a municipality, even as noncombatant enlisted soldier as long ago as 1917, is reckoned for the parasite's benefit as a pensioner when he is retired from office by vote of his constituents.

Vincent Impellitteri, recently mayor of New York, now serving as judge in order to qualify soon for a pension of $20,000, lumped in a few months of harmless and, apparently, useless "service" as a navy yard bluejacket in World War 1. This enhanced his pension benefit.

The corporation executives grow more brazen the more they get away with. The condition is not spotty and exceptional. It is general. They vote themselves bunches of stock and sub-market prices under clever contrivances, rigged by cunning and crooked lawyers, which release them from income taxes on the profit. Instead they pay capital gain taxes of 25 per cent. On the same amount, as "income," they might pay from 50 per cent to 90 per cent. Their purpose frankly is to duck the same income taxes that the shareholders have to pay. They adopt sweet names for this favoritism to themselves but in personal discussion they all admit that the idea is to make the shareholder the goat. They make him pay "contributions" toward their pensions with a grumbling complaint, hardly becoming "big" men claiming moral and civic leadership, that the high income tax brackets drain them of their ambition.

The small shareholder must be a lower form of human life if, indeed, he is human. Perhaps he, too, is drained of his ambition by high income taxes. But the elite class, now including judges, political executives and legislators, have put themselves into the moral company of the plundering corporation bosses to live lavishly at the expense of people whom they plainly believe to be inferior.

When a corporation employe rises to the governing board he is in a position to fix his own salary. However, he purposely refrains from raising it too high because at $75,000 a year he runs into the law of diminishing returns. So instead of voting himself all he can take now, he votes himself into a trust for the future. This means that the shareholder, when he buys a share of stock, must promise to pay these people big pensions before his dividends are reckoned. He uses his savings, after taxes, to buy those shares, so these high-salaried trustees of his are clipping a little guy. After the pensions are paid there may be nothing left for dividends. Phelps-Dodge is one firm which does throw a nod of consideration to the faceless man. He doesn't have to donate to the P-D old-age pence until the company has paid a certain rate of profit to him. But that is exceptional.

In the nature of their job these executives have absolute authority provided they have the proxies to back up their votes in their own favor.

In the nature of their job senators and congressmen have the same power. However, the recent raise was a plain theft. Granted only for the sake of argument that they deserve more money, they were guilty of larceny by trustee in voting themselves that big raise in repudiation of the contract which they made, under oath, on swearing in. They went up and down their states and districts pleading for votes to elect them to serve at a wage established by Congress itself. They said nothing about a raise. And they knew that whoever had said "the first thing I will do if elected is raise my pay 50 per cent" would have been snowed under. We used to rail at Hitler for violating his solemn treaties.

It is not conceded in fact that they are underpaid. Most of them never earned as much in private life as the congressional pay for the last session. These are the people who squandered billions abroad and subsidized Marxian socialism in Britain at the expense of the American faceless man. I never authorized the bums to spend my taxes for that. They inflated our money so badly that the old salaries were inadequate. They did a rotten job and the reward for that they raise their pay.

EXPLORER IN THOUGHT

The mind of Albert Einstein traveled in areas of thought where man had never explored before. He sought knowledge with the same instinct that makes men breathe—because it was necessary to his existence.

In 1945 the age of the atom was christened with the mushrooming cloud over Hiroshima—it was an age he had midwifed in 1922 when he articulated his theory of relativity. It is ironic that this humane and gentle man, dedicated to the search for a deeper understanding of the physical world around him, should have played a part in creating the most powerful instrument of destruction ever known.

That this was so was a source of sorrow to Einstein. Yet he would have been the last to use it as an excuse for ceasing scientific inquiry. He knew that intellectual courage is an essential of human progress and he had faith in the rationality of mankind. Even as he probed the secrets of nature, so did he try to find the answers to the seeming paradoxes in human nature. Once he said: "The solution of men's problems lies in men's hearts."

His contributions will be studied with those of the great men of other centuries and as times passes he may even come to seem an almost contemporary of the Aristotles, the Euclids, the others who ventured beyond the frontiers of knowledge in their own day. Our century was blessed indeed in giving him birth.

NATURE STILL RULES

Apparently nowhere in the grand Communist scheme is there a place for the unexpected workings of nature. The Soviet, pressed hard for food and grain, has begun purges among agricultural officials. In a drastic recent move, 30,000 of Russia's 90,000 directors of collective farms were ordered replaced. Such sweeping condemnations indicate the degree of desperation the food problem has produced.

Last week two state farm directors were fired and ordered to make good a loss in cattle that died, it was said, from neglect. Although the extent of the losses was not disclosed, the wild winter storms of Russia take tens of thousands of livestock every year. Comrade Citizen is supposed to believe it was not the prolonged icy blasts, but men deliberately persecuting the people who wantonly killed the cattle.

The agricultural purges may help reveal the fantasy the Communist bosses have long been weaving to the Soviet people. Blizzards and storms and nature's cold are things all Russians know. To blame men for nature's caprices may seem to many a peasant and comrade a word of straw in a Moscow made wind.

The true executive, a business analyst states, is one who "can make a smoothly functioning team out of people with many different skills." Now we can understand why mother is usually the chief executive of the home.

TALGO TRAIN

A Talgo can haul a cargo cheaper than any other locomotive. So say the sponsors of a new type of light train which originated not in the United States, the traditional birthplace of new inventions, but in Spain, popularly supposed to be sluggish and behind the times. Talgo trains have already been ordered by the Rock Island Railroad, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford has asked to use the demonstrator train, believing that it might cut the time for trains between Boston and New York from five hours or thereabouts to two and a half.

The Talgo looks something like a caterpillar. It is a series of short, compact units, each with a pair of wheels at the rear and supported at the front by the rear end of the preceding unit. It has been compared to a series of short, trailer units, "each riding piggy-back on the one ahead." Its main features are light weight and low center of gravity. Cars are only one-quarter to one-third as long as ordinary railroad coaches, resulting in approximately 75 per cent less dead weight per passenger.

The railroads, as most of them privately admit, are seriously threatened by the bus, plane and, even more, by the private automobile. If they are to survive, they must cut costs drastically. Perhaps the Talgo is the answer.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE ANCIENT SPOKESMAN

It has long been a device for statesmen to use journalists to test out public opinion by trial balloons. Often the statesman is too cowardly to say what is on his mind so he uses an anonymous "spokesman," or a "high official source," or a "well-informed person."

What this means is that the statesman leaks a story to someone and assumes no responsibility for it. Theodore Roosevelt had a way of calling the person to whom he leaked a liar if the thing went badly. In recent years, Drew Pearson has been called liar by some of the most distinguished gentlemen in the nation and perhaps he will one day write his reminiscences and tell all. It may appear that those who so surely employed their high offices to establish him as a liar leaked the news to him originally. I do not know.

The Corsi Case is in point. Whoever handled it for the State Department, at the start, leaked the news, employing the device of the anonymous "spokesman." As such leaks have come to have the reputation of being irresponsible, the State Department, which had a good case, gave the appearance of having a bad case. From a straight public relations standpoint, it would have been sounder for the State Department to have issued an official statement to the press setting forth its side of the Corsi affairs, pointing to the fact that Corsi is so much an individualist that he does not fit into an organization unless he heads it, that he takes upon himself authorities beyond his responsibility, with such details as may be warranted. As it is, all this is coming out anyhow, but in a manner which does not help anyone connected with the case.

An editor writes me:

". . . An editor who would discard at sight a scurrilous but anonymous letter, will print almost any sort of a personal attack so long as it is attributed to a 'spokesman' or some such individual who lacks the guts to face the man he is accusing."

The business of a reporter is to get the news and with the current black-out in practically all departments of government, many reporters grasp at straws, in the sense that if a great statesman seems to give them an off-the-record leak or a story that can be attributed to a "spokesman," they take it because their business is to get the news however they can.

One of the best ways of suppressing a story is to give it off-the-record. Most of the so-called background conferences are really efforts to kill a story. Everybody is sworn to secrecy. The best way to get such a story, however disguised, it not to attend the background conference, to get whatever one can from other sources and to let the public know what goes on. That is why so many columnists prefer not to attend background conferences. They feel that it is their duty to get the information to the people, not to pledge themselves not to give the information to the people.

It is perhaps all in the point of view. Some reporters feel that close proximity to greatness is a virtue all its own. Somehow something of the statesman is bound to rub off in moments of social relationships. This is particularly true of younger men who appraise greatness by the kind of job a man holds. As one matures in this struggle for news, one learns that the measure of a man is his character, not the job he may hold. The job may come to him for all sorts of reasons, including nothing better than that he has always been on the public payroll and is popular with a factional so-called minority group whose votes may count for something in an election. No question of ability or character is involved, only what the gangster calls connections. And the connections may not always be to the best interests of the United States.

If the "spokesman" could be killed off, the news would be better, provided we also killed the "authoritative source," and the "official source," and a lot of other devices to avoid responsibility. The people ought to have all the news with a name authoring the data when it is government inspired. Otherwise the news may not be news at all. It may be propaganda.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

WHAT IS ASTHMA?

I write frequently about asthma because there are so many people suffering from this distressing ailment — about one in every seventy-five, it has been estimated.

What is asthma? Asthma is difficulty in breathing, a choking caused by obstruction of the small bronchial tubes, either by swelling of the membrane lining the tubes, or by contraction of the muscles around the tubes, or by plugging of the tubes by mucus. As a result, the lungs become distended, breathing becomes increasingly difficult, the chest swells, there are wheezing noises, the neck muscles strain, the veins become swollen, and the sufferer, as a rule, cannot lie down.

The suffering is severe; it may last for a few minutes, hours or for days and even weeks. Asthma may occur in frequent spells or may become continuous but is rarely fatal.

What causes asthma? There are several kinds of asthma, depending upon the cause. One type is found in older persons and is associated with heart trouble. Many other cases of asthma are caused by a bacteria or virus (a very tiny organism) infection involving the sinuses, throat and bronchi.

By far the most common type of asthma is the kind produced by allergy. Allergy is a condition of sensitivity which certain persons develop to substances, ordinarily harmless to the rest of the population. These substances may be taken into the body by being inhaled in the air, by being swallowed, by contact on the skin, or being injected. All these sensitizing substances are called "allergens" and can produce allergic symptoms, though not all cause asthma.

The allergen most commonly causing asthma is pollen, the tiny powdery particles given off by flowering plants and trees. For the most part, this pollen is from ragweed, thistle, sagebrush, and such common trees as oak, elm, maple, ash, birch and others which have light pollen easily carried in the air.

Next to pollen in importance as a source of allergy are the spores or tiny seeds of molds which grow in great profusion in grains and grasses, leaves of bushes and trees, and in the soil. They are smaller than pollen and also air-carried.

Other inhaled substances which can cause asthma are house dust, animal dandruff, cosmetics, insect dust and dust from occupations such as milling and farming.

Foods and drugs also can cause asthma but not in as many cases as are found in pollen and molds.

Tomorrow we will consider what your doctor can do for you if you are an asthmatic.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — Authority to establish full economic controls over prices, wages and credit in case of emergency war mobilization will be requested from Congress by the Eisenhower administration within the next month.

The occasion for this reversal of Republican policy will be Defense Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming's appearance before Banking and Currency Committees.

He will ask for extension of the Defense Production Act, which is due to expire June 30, 1955. Amendments will be offered to give the government broad new authority for emergency economic controls.

The government has not had this authority since the economic stabilization sections of the Defense Production act of 1950 expired in 1953.

ONE OF PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S FIRST acts after coming to the White House was to end price and wage controls.

This was in compliance with the Republican platform pledge of 1952. The Administration was committed to a free economy.

Last December, however, Edward F. Phelps, Jr., was brought into ODM as Director for Stabilization. His assignment was to develop plans for stepped-up or all-out mobilization.

Mr. Phelps had served as director of the Food Price division of OPA in World War II. During the Korean emergency, he was director of Price Operations in OPS.

While most of the officials who had anything to do with either of those unlamented organizations got burned, Mr. Phelps is back for more. His experience in two wars makes him a natural choice for the new stabilization planning.

It is fully recognized, however, that for all-out war and mobilization, indirect controls will not do the job. The nation's tax bill is now over $90 billion a year. Adding $50 billion a year to this to finance a war and control inflation has its limitations.

Setting for War or Peace Really in Europe Instead of Asia With Area Troubles

By DAVID LAWRENCE

En route to Europe, April 22—The answer to the greatest worry of the American people today is somewhere in Europe. For, while the problems of Asia are often acute and threatening, they are after all only a part of the checkerboard of Europe where the real struggle goes on for a balance of power that can set the stage for or prevent a third world war.

To a degree perhaps unrealized by many people in the United States, the life and the future business welfare of the nation now is dependent on the outcome of those European maneuvers that seek some form of security but which history tells us have often led to war.

No one capital—Moscow or London—is able to supply the answer. For a crisis can come out of events in Italy or France or even out of the Balkan States that now are under the Soviet yoke. The whole situation is interrelated.

Does, for example, the new effort by Soviet Russia to make a deal with Austria foreshadow another move to appeal to the people of West Germany? For it is obviously Moscow's game to grant a form of independence not only to Austria but some day to a reunited Germany. It's the battle over a rearmed Germany and her future that causes real concern. Will Moscow ever be content until she has somehow gotten a tight hold on Germany through either economic or political ties?

Also is it to be assumed that the Soviet has given up hope of recovering Yugoslavia and presenting Italians with a worry on their northern border as Communists inside Italy keep up their unremitting propaganda which continues to exploit conditions of poverty?

These are questions that confront the western powers as they prepare to rearm Germany. If the western alliance were solid and invincible, instead of wavering and volatile due to internal dissensions and the poisons of political-party strife, there would be less hope for Moscow to realize her ambitions.

But the weaknesses of Britain, France, Germany and Italy cannot be glossed over. Precisely because some of the statesmen there know this, they grow uneasy when an Asian crisis arises which could divert to the Far East some of the manpower and supplies that might be needed to defend Europe.

To survey some of these situations, this writer plans to visit the principal countries of the Western Alliance. It is conceded that Marshall Plan aid has saved Europe from economic chaos. But there is as yet no plan or prescription to save Europe from the follies of its politicians.

There are elections coming in Great Britain. Maybe also there will be an election soon in Italy. The French parliamentary situation is fragile.

Curiously enough, only Spain has political stability, and it is on Spain that American military planners are placing great reliance, with bases there along the Mediterranean that can be used by the United States Air Force and the United States Navy, the American people have been paying for an alternative bastion—one that can be relied upon if the bases in Britain and France should some day be withheld from our use. This could result either because of fear of atomic reprisals from Moscow or because of an ill-conceived program of appeasement of Soviet Russia which has its progenitor in present-day talk of "peaceful co-existence."

It is not to be overlooked that the British Labor party insists that the British government must hold a veto over the possible use of the atom bomb by American forces stationed in England. If the Parliament has to debate whether planes carrying the atom bomb shall be started from British airfields toward Russian territory once an attack has come to some part of the United States, the delay might be a fatal one. Yet involved in these very political uncertainties is the fate of the American people and their capacity to retaliate in an atomic war.

In these days when a journey to Europe by ship is just a long week end and by air is only overnight, the opportunity is given without loss of much time to cross the Atlantic and make a firsthand examination of the factors that can mean unbalanced budgets, continued high taxes, and military service for American youth at almost a moment's notice. For in Europe, with Soviet Russia stretching her authority over a vast area, is the key to many an American problem of legislative policy.

Old Enough for Guns

Wallingford, Conn. (AP)—"You don't look 21," Edwin E. Cowen told two youths who ordered a quart of beer at his liquor store. When Cowen asked them for proof of age, one of the youths reached into his pocket for a revolver. The pair fled with $250 in cash from Cowen's wallet and cash register.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

There is a deadly parallel between the cynical avarice of the sitting United States Congress and those executives of our giant corporations who have abused their power to vote themselves great pensions and bonuses at the expense of the common man. In both cases, the offense is embezzlement but under legal conditions. This Congress was elected to serve stated terms, two years for congressmen, six for senators, at an agreed price of $15,000, plus perrequisites. Immediately after convening, these men set about repudiating their contract by raising their pay about 50 per cent. That is a big raise which, taken as a precedent for all employed persons, would wreck the financial system.

Corporation executives have been doing this for 20 years. They are so greedy and so contemptuous toward the ordinary investors who provide the "venture capital" that hardly a corporation report these days fails to dwell on their annuities or pensions, always on a lavish scale. Ordinary investors are notified that they will have to provide such pensions for men drawing salaries up to $100,000 a year, and usually for their surviving wives and other dependents. Like the members of Congress, these executives set their own salaries. And the members of Congress, like the corporation executives, set their own pension rates.

The public had little knowledge of the congressional pension system, but it is very generous. By its very lavishness, as compared with social security old-age pensions, it reflects the contempt of these politicians for the citizens who pay the taxes to pay those pensions. An ordinary worker may draw $20 a week on retirement at $65, provided he does not get caught earning more than $40 a week. Congressional pensioners may draw $150 a week or more and earn all they can. The system is so complex that service as sheriff or commissioner of sewers in a municipality, even as noncombatant enlisted soldier as long ago as 1917, is reckoned for the parasite's benefit as a pensioner when he is retired from office by vote of his constituents.

Vincent Impellitteri, recently mayor of New York, now serving as judge in order to qualify soon for a pension of $20,000, lumped in a few months of harmless and, apparently, useless "service" as a navy yard bluejacket in World War 1. This enhanced his pension benefit.

The corporation executives grow more brazen the more they get away with. The condition is not spotty and exceptional. It is general. They vote themselves bunches of stock and sub-market prices under clever contrivances, rigged by cunning and crooked lawyers, which release them from income taxes on the profit. Instead they pay capital gain taxes of 25 per cent. On the same amount, as "income," they might pay from 50 per cent to 90 per cent. Their purpose frankly is to duck the same income taxes that the shareholders have to pay. They adopt sweet names for this favoritism to themselves but in personal discussion they all admit that the idea is to make the shareholder the goat. They make him pay "contributions" toward their pensions with a grumbling complaint, hardly becoming "big" men claiming moral and civic leadership, that the high income tax brackets drain them of their ambition.

The small shareholder must be a lower form of human life if, indeed, he is human. Perhaps he, too, is drained of his ambition by high income taxes. But the elite class, now including judges, political executives and legislators, have put themselves into the moral company of the plundering corporation bosses to live lavishly at the expense of people whom they plainly believe to be inferior.

When a corporation employe rises to the governing board he is in a position to fix his own salary. However, he purposely refrains from raising it too high because at $75,000 a year he runs into the law of diminishing returns. So instead of voting himself all he can take now, he votes himself into a trust for the future. This means that the shareholder, when he buys a share of stock, must promise to pay these people big pensions before his dividends are reckoned. He uses his savings, after taxes, to buy those shares, so these high-salaried trustees of his are clipping a little guy. After the pensions are paid there may be nothing left for dividends. Phelps-Dodge is one firm which does throw a nod of consideration to the faceless man. He doesn't have to donate to the P-D old-age pence until the company has paid a certain rate of profit to him. But that is exceptional.

In the nature of their job these executives have absolute authority provided they have the proxies to back up their votes in their own favor.

In the nature of their job senators and congressmen have the same power. However, the recent raise was a plain theft. Granted only for the sake of argument that they deserve more money, they were guilty of larceny by trustee in voting themselves that big raise in repudiation of the contract which they made, under oath, on swearing in. They went up and down their states and districts pleading for votes to elect them to serve at a wage established by Congress itself. They said nothing about a raise. And they knew that whoever had said "the first thing I will do if elected is raise my pay 50 per cent" would have been snowed under. We used to rail at Hitler for violating his solemn treaties.

It is not conceded in fact that they are underpaid. Most of them never earned as much in private life as the congressional pay for the last session. These are the people who squandered billions abroad and subsidized Marxian socialism in Britain at the expense of the American faceless man. I never authorized the bums to spend my taxes for that. They inflated our money so badly that the old salaries were inadequate. They did a rotten job and reward for that they raise their pay.

General Motors To Work Hard For Agreement

A pledge that General Motors intends to "work hard in an effort to arrive at a new agreement with the UAW-CIO which will be fair and of mutual benefit to all" was made Thursday evening by H. W. Anderson, vice-president in charge of personnel of General Motors.

In a filmed message, shown before General Motors Club members and their guests at the Nelson House in Poughkeepsie, Mr. Anderson emphasized that GM has taken its position at the bargaining table in Detroit with an open mind.

The GM vice-president, who is heading the company's negotiating team in current collective bargaining with the UAW-CIO, pointed out that many of the same General Motors and UAW men who were able to successfully negotiate five years of industrial peace and prosperity in 1950 are once again sitting across the bargaining table discussing mutual problems.

Reviewing some of the dramatic benefits that General Motors employes enjoyed under the historic agreement, Anderson said that as a result of it General Motors was able to plan ahead in research and new product development and to expand its facilities tremendously to meet the growing customer demand.

"This all added up," he said, "to higher pay, steadier employment and the addition of 128,000 good new jobs in General Motors during this five year period."

He said that there is every indication that 1955 will not only be another good year in the automotive business, "but it can be the best year of all."

In view of these facts, he said, "It's just plain common sense to keep the prosperity ball rolling straight through the year."

Anderson's message followed the showing of two movies in color. One of them told the human and dramatic story of how hundreds of thousands of GM employes contributed to an unprecedented achievement celebrated last year by GM—the production of its 50 millionth automobile since 1908. The other film, titled "Report on a Prophecy," reviewed in narrative form the benefits derived by GM employes, customers, suppliers and shareholders under the five-year agreement.

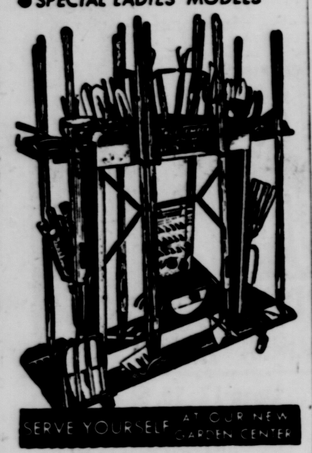

Using a typical GM hourly-rate employe as a case example, the film points out that GM hourly-rate workers received total increases of 44 cents an hour during the five-year period of the agreement and employes grossed a total of more than $20,000 in wages on the average during the period. It also pointed out the advanced pension, sickness and accident and health benefits enjoyed by GM men and women during that time.

Chairman of the meeting was W. J. McCurdy, manager, General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

Among these, he included water pressure and the age of water pipes and mains.

Dance Plans Advanced At Auxiliary Meeting

Saugerties, April 21—Plans for a square and round dance to be sponsored by the Malden-West Camp Fire Company Saturday, May 14, were discussed at the meeting of the auxiliary Tuesday night in the West Camp Parish Hall.

The auxiliary named a committee headed by Mrs. Harry L. Moose, Mrs. Valmore Carpenter and Mrs. Lewis Mickle to handle refreshments for the second annual affair planned for Bigelow Hall.

Mrs. Jerry A. Smith, secretary of the group and chairman of the ticket committee for the auxiliary, distributed dance tickets to all members present.

A report on the food sale sponsored by the group recently in Genthner's Meat Market was presented and announced as successful.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by a committee including Mrs. Lewis Mickle, Mrs. Charles Dyce and Mrs. Mabel Wiltsie.

Cub Pack 130 Plans For Forestry Theme

Saugerties, April 21—Robert G. Ohlman, district game manager of the Poughkeepsie office of the State Conservation Department, will be the guest speaker at the regular monthly pack meeting of Cub Pack 130, VFW, Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the VFW Hall on Livingston street.

The announcement was made at Pack 130 Ideas Committee meeting Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Simmons on Livingston street.

Mrs. Albert J. Cawein representing the Ideas Committee for the month of April outlined the program for the Forestry Theme which will be observed by the pack this month.

Mrs. Cawein reported that 500 shrubs for planting by the cub scouts had been obtained through the services of the Saugerties Fish and Game Club. Arrangements were made to plant the shrubs on Saturday afternoon under the direction of Assistant Cubmaster Hubert Legg and representatives of the Fish and Game Club.

The Forestry program would also feature a cup planting project by the Cub Scouts and a prize will be given to the boy showing the cup with the highest plant on the night of the meeting. The boys planted watermelon seeds for the project.

Members of the local fish and game club will be invited to attend the pack meeting and participate in the program.

Those attending the meeting included Cubmaster William Ormandy, Assistant Cubmaster Legg, den mothers, Mrs. Ormandy, Mrs. Legg, Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Eva Mae Peck and Mrs. Chester Schaff, representing the Ideas Committee for May.

Troop 33 Parents Night Lacks Parents

Saugerties, April 21—A poorly attended Parent's Night was conducted by the committee and leaders of Boy Scout Troop 33 and Cub Pack 33 of Malden and West Camp Tuesday night in the West Camp Parish Hall.

Seven parents representing six boys out of a total of 18 scouts in Troop 33 attended. Only three parents made an appearance showing their interest in the welfare of the Cub Pack and consequently Cub Pack 33 of Malden and West Camp will expire with the charter on April 30.

Scouting leaders including District Commissioner Eugene H. Davis and Neighborhood Commissioner Albert J. Cawein are attempting to organize some sort of make-shift organization in the form of a Neighborhood Den in order to provide Scouting for those few who have shown interest. Mrs. Henry Knaust has offered to serve as den mother for the West Camp unit in the event it is organized.

However, the Malden unit which has over five Cub Scouts requires the services of a den mother before it can become a functioning unit.

Scoutmaster Walter J. Levy directed the scouts of Troop 33 in a display of first aid for the benefit of the parents present.

Following the scouts' presentation Frank Teel, field scout executive and Camp Director of Camp Tri-Mount projected film slides and offered commentary on the camp which is the official camp of the council.

Registration papers for the re-registraiton of Boy Scout Troop 33 were signed by James J. Maines, Leslie Whitehead and John J. Noble as committeemen and Neighborhood Commissioner Cawein as institutional representative.

The troop is sponsored by St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church of West Camp which provides one of the finest meeting rooms in the council.

Other parents present representing the troop were Mrs. Henry Knaust, Mrs. Maines, Mrs. Joseph Notarnicola, Mrs. Jerry A. Smith and Mrs. Harry Paradise.

Parents representing the Cub Pack included Mrs. Knaust, Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Louis Hartrum.

Also registered with Troop 33 was Assistant Scoutmaster William L. Brockway.

The troop meets each Tuesday at 7 p. m. in the West Camp parish hall.

Sun Heats Stove

Beirut, Lebanon (AP)—Poverty-stricken people in the Arab world soon will be able to take advantage of their most abundant natural resource—sunshine. Dr. Adnan Tarcici, has invented a cooking stove which uses the sun's rays. An Egyptian firm has contracted to turn out 18,000 such stoves yearly. "One third of a worker's salary often is spent for fuel," Dr. Tarcici says, "while from eight to nine months a year the sun shines all day." Forests on any extensive scale disappeared from the Arab world before the dawn of history. Deposits of coal are rare. Peasants have had to pay dearly for kerosene, charcoal, or plain wood for cooking. Dried animal manure is the chief cooking fuel. Use of manure for cooking in turn deprives the land of natural fertilizer.

Mangled Body Found

Cold Spring, April 19 (AP)—The mangled body of an unidentified man was found on the tracks of the New York Central Railroad near here last night. The body was discovered by a state trooper who was investigating the abandonment of an automobile on Route 9B, a short distance from where the body lay.

Dance Plans Advanced At Auxiliary Meeting

Saugerties, April 21—Plans for a square and round dance to be sponsored by the Malden-West Camp Fire Company Saturday, May 14, were discussed at the meeting of the auxiliary Tuesday night in the West Camp Parish Hall.

The auxiliary named a committee headed by Mrs. Harry L. Moose, Mrs. Valmore Carpenter and Mrs. Lewis Mickle to handle refreshments for the second annual affair planned for Bigelow Hall.

Mrs. Jerry A. Smith, secretary of the group and chairman of the ticket committee for the auxiliary, distributed dance tickets to all members present.

A report on the food sale sponsored by the group recently in Genthner's Meat Market was presented and announced as successful.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by a committee including Mrs. Lewis Mickle, Mrs. Charles Dyce and Mrs. Mabel Wiltsie.

Cub Pack 130 Plans For Forestry Theme

Saugerties, April 21 — Robert G. Ohlman, district game manager of the Poughkeepsie office of the State Conservation Department, will be the guest speaker at the regular monthly pack meeting of Cub Pack 130, VFW, Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the VFW Hall on Livingston street.

The announcement was made at Pack 130 Ideas Committee meeting Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Simmons on Livingston street.

Mrs. Albert J. Cawein representing the Ideas Committee for the month of April outlined the program for the Forestry Theme which will be observed by the pack this month.

Mrs. Cawein reported that 500 shrubs for planting by the cub scouts had been obtained through the services of the Saugerties Fish and Game Club. Arrangements were made to plant the shrubs on Saturday afternoon under the direction of Assistant Cubmaster Hubert Legg and representatives of the Fish and Game Club.

The Forestry program would also feature a cup planting project by the Cub Scouts and a prize will be given to the boy showing the cup with the highest plant on the night of the meeting. The boys planted watermelon seeds for the project.

Members of the local fish and game club will be invited to attend the pack meeting and participate in the program.

Those attending the meeting included Cubmaster William Ormandy, Assistant Cubmaster Legg, den mothers, Mrs. Ormandy, Mrs. Legg, Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Eva Mae Peck and Mrs. Chester Schaff, representing the Ideas Committee for May.

Troop 33 Parents Night Lacks Parents

Saugerties, April 21—A poorly attended Parent's Night was conducted by the committee and leaders of Boy Scout Troop 33 and Cub Pack 33 of Malden and West Camp Tuesday night in the West Camp Parish Hall.

Seven parents representing six boys out of a total of 18 scouts in Troop 33 attended. Only three parents made an appearance showing their interest in the welfare of the Cub Pack and consequently Cub Pack 33 of Malden and West Camp will expire with the charter on April 30.

Scouting leaders including District Commissioner Eugene H. Davis and Neighborhood Commissioner Albert J. Cawein are attempting to organize some sort of make-shift organization in the form of a Neighborhood Den in order to provide Scouting for those few who have shown interest. Mrs. Henry Knaust has offered to serve as den mother for the West Camp unit in the event it is organized.

However, the Malden unit which has over five Cub Scouts requires the services of a den mother before it can become a functioning unit.

Scoutmaster Walter J. Levy directed the scouts of Troop 33 in a display of first aid for the benefit of the parents present.

Following the scouts' presentation Frank Teel, field scout executive and Camp Director of Camp Tri-Mount projected film slides and offered commentary on the camp which is the official camp of the council.

Registration papers for the reregistraiton of Boy Scout Troop 33 were signed by James J. Maines, Leslie Whitehead and John J. Noble as committeemen and Neighborhood Commissioner Cawein as institutional representative.

The troop is sponsored by St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church of West Camp which provides one of the finest meeting rooms in the council.

Other parents present representing the troop were Mrs. Henry Knaust, Mrs. Maines, Mrs. Joseph Notarnicola, Mrs. Jerry A. Smith and Mrs. Harry Paradise.

Parents representing the Cub Pack included Mrs. Knaust, Mrs. Smith, and Mrs. Louis Hartrum.

Also registered with Troop 33 was Assistant Scoutmaster William L. Brockway.

The troop meets each Tuesday at 7 p. m. in the West Camp parish hall.

Sun Heats Stove

Beirut, Lebanon (AP)—Poverty-stricken people in the Arab world soon will be able to take advantage of their most abundant natural resource—sunshine. Dr. Adnan Tarcici, has invented a cooking stove which uses the sun's rays. An Egyptian firm has contracted to turn out 18,000 such stoves yearly. "One third of a worker's salary often is spent for fuel," Dr. Tarcici says, "while from eight to nine months a year the sun shines all day." Forests on any extensive scale disappeared from the Arab world before the dawn of history. Deposits of coal are rare. Peasants have had to pay dearly for kerosene, charcoal, or plain wood for cooking. Dried animal manure is the chief cooking fuel. Use of manure for cooking in turn deprives the land of natural fertilizer.

Mangled Body Found

Cold Spring, April 19 (AP)—The mangled body of an unidentified man was found on the tracks of the New York Central Railroad near here last night. The body was discovered by a state trooper who was investigating the abandonment of an automobile on Route 9B, a short distance from where the body lay.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., April 21—One of the critical problems facing every voter today is how to pay for the mounting cost of education without taxing property holders into the poorhouse.

THE SHARP RISE in the birth rate is one source of our problem. To help house the increasing population, about 9,500,000 housing units have been built since 1945—1,215,600 in 1954 alone! This building boom has given impetus to our national prosperity, but it has created problems galore at the school level. Most of these new homes have been purchased by good young couples who want decent places in which to raise their families.

These families have become so large in proportion to existing educational facilities that many cities and towns are now losing money on each new house built. Where there is more than one child per family, the loss often amounts, on the educational bill alone, to several hundred dollars We know there will be a marked demand for more and more educational facilities during the next ten years. Since by law we must provide both facilities and teachers, we may well ask for some economies to be made which can help keep costs down.

YOU CANNOT afford a custom-built automobile. Can you any more afford a custom-built school? It is high time the U. S. Office of Education, as well as the various State Departments of Education, moved in with some standard basic plans for basic schools, which can readily be expanded with the school population. Unit sections should also be made readily movable to some other section of the community should the need arise.

There are literally a hundred ways to cut construction costs: Standard plans should be used for a given number of children, with the extras that don't really add up to better education for your child being cleared out. Don't build a monument of mortar that will be outmoded long before it is outworn. Let us consider the children and taxpayers — rather than glorify some mayor or architect.

THE SUGGESTION has been made that we could cut teaching costs by doubling classroom size. Then we could hire the brightest teachers in the land to make recordings for radio and TV educational hookups. The children could be tested on what they had seen and heard by being given true-false, multiple-choice questions, and by having them mark their answers on IBM answer sheets that would be corrected by machine.

However, teacher efficiency cannot be measured in terms of the number of youngsters turned out of our schools each year. From what I have seen of some of the educational products of recent years, I think nowhere near enough stress has been placed on the quality of education which our children are receiving.

WHAT BUSINESS would "earn its salt" today if its employes worked only from 8:30 to 2:30, vacationed from June 25 to September 5, and its factory store lay idle as much as the average school does? It is true that teachers have papers to correct, lessons to prepare, and extracurricular activities to supervise! But, ways should be devised so that teachers can earn the extra money they need. One idea would be to extend the school day and the school year so that the first eight years are done in seven, and the last four years in three. Thereby we save two years for the children, as well as money for increased salaries.

We can make our plant more efficient and give teachers a much-needed raise. We might even help solve the problem of delinquency by keeping our kids busier. This sort of thing is not a pipe dream. At the college level, the students of Babson Institute, a fully accredited College of Business Administration, do four years of college work in three — and after graduation make an outstanding mark for themselves. This might be tried for the lower grades as well. From such, all will benefit — children, teachers, and taxpayers.

Released From Jail

Jersey City, N. J., April 22 (AP)—Bernarr MacFadden, 86-year-old physical culturist, kicked up his heels and did an Irish jig last night on his release after three days in Hudson county jail. The former publisher finally managed to raise the $10,000 bond for his freedom. He had been in the jail since Monday in connection with alimony difficulties. Being in jail was "damned unpleasant," MacFadden said. But he added that it was "made as easy as possible by a very remarkable warden. He's really a great guy." The warden at the jail is Harry McFarland.

Orlando, Fla. (AP)—Telephone officials readily agree Jean Yothers daily column in the Orlando Sentinel has many readers but they hope she doesn't use a phone gimmick again to demonstrate this. She printed an offer of a month's free pass to the first 25 readers to call a movie theatre. The phone company reported the exchange serving the theatre was so jammed by calls that important calls to police, fire, hospital and business numbers couldn't get through.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., April 21—One of the critical problems facing every voter today is how to pay for the mounting cost of education without taxing property holders into the poorhouse.

THE SHARP RISE in the birth rate is one source of our problem. To help house the increasing population, about 9,500,000 housing units have been built since 1945—1,215,600 in 1954 alone! This building boom has given impetus to our national prosperity, but it has created problems galore at the school level. Most of these new homes have been purchased by good young couples who want decent places in which to raise their families.

These families have become so large in proportion to existing educational facilities that many cities and towns are now losing money on each new house built. Where there is more than one child per family, the loss often amounts, on the educational bill alone, to several hundred dollars. We know there will be a marked demand for more and more educational facilities during the next ten years. Since by law we must provide both facilities and teachers, we may well ask for some economies to be made which can help keep costs down.

YOU CANNOT afford a custom-built automobile. Can you any more afford a custom-built school? It is high time the U. S. Office of Education, as well as the various State Departments of Education, moved in with some standard basic plans for basic schools, which can readily be expanded with the school population. Unit sections should also be made readily movable to some other section of the community should the need arise.

There are literally a hundred ways to cut construction costs: Standard plans should be used for a given number of children, with the extras that don't really add up to better education for your child being cleared out. Don't build a monument of mortar that will be outmoded long before it is outworn. Let us consider the children and taxpayers — rather than glorify some mayor or architect.

THE SUGGESTION has been made that we could cut teaching costs by doubling classroom size. Then we could hire the brightest teachers in the land to make recordings for radio and TV educational hookups. The children could be tested on what they had seen and heard by being given true-false, multiple-choice questions, and by having them mark their answers on IBM answer sheets that would be corrected by machine.

However, teacher efficiency cannot be measured in terms of the number of youngsters turned out of our schools each year. From what I have seen of some of the educational products of recent years, I think nowhere near enough stress has been placed on the quality of education which our children are receiving.

WHAT BUSINESS would "earn its salt" today if its employes worked only from 8:30 to 2:30, vacationed from June 25 to September 5, and its factory store lay idle as much as the average school does? It is true that teachers have papers to correct, lessons to prepare, and extracurricular activities to supervise! But, ways should be devised so that teachers can earn the extra money they need. One idea would be to extend the school day and the school year so that the first eight years are done in seven, and the last four years in three. Thereby we save two years for the children, as well as money for increased salaries.

We can make our plant more efficient and give teachers a much-needed raise. We might even help solve the problem of delinquency by keeping our kids busier. This sort of thing is not a pipe dream. At the college level, the students of Babson Institute, a fully accredited College of Business Administration, do four years of college work in three — and after graduation make an outstanding mark for themselves. This might be tried for the lower grades as well. From such, all will benefit — children, teachers, and taxpayers.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

It is becoming evident, the Ruminator thinks, that we are entering an exciting economic era.

One of this writer's pet slogans concerning his theory of contrary opinion goes this way: When everybody thinks alike, "everyone" is likely to be wrong. Walter Lippman has twisted this around to read: Where all think alike, no one thinks very much.

Applying these sayings to the current era of boom-time economics you find yourself doing some interesting ruminating.

I RECENTLY READ in a little magazine of economic opinion ("Investor's Future") that from a test-sampling which had been conducted "the average man-on-the-street" is fully aware of the "over-doing and over-borrowing" that is going on.

In other words, "everyone" (according to this survey) knows that (1) automobile sales cannot continue to maintain the present pace; that (2) the building of houses is being overdone; and (3) that installment and credit business is being over-expanded dangerously.

As I say, according to the survey, everybody knows that this cannot go on.

So where does this leave us contrarians?

Does it mean that because everybody seems to be aware of the dangers of current over-expansion that over-expansion doesn't exist?

Or—does it mean that actually there is no over-expansion—that the current extraordinary pace of buying and borrowing can be absorbed because of the present rate of personal incomes?

Or — thirdly — does it mean that while everybody knows the pace is too swift they simply don't give a hoot and intend to ride the merry-go-round as long as it keeps turning?

AS IN ALL economic conundrums, you can see explanations from all sides. What is important, however, is to try to determine which of the three latter questions above are likely to be closest to the real condition prevailing.

At first blush, it semed to the Ruminator that the so-called man-on-the-street was not really aware of the distortions mentioned. However, the more I thought about it and the more I discussed it with others the more I swung over to the viewpoint that people generally are conscious of the over-buying and over-borrowing—but are indifferent and unconcerned about the outcome.

I wonder if the explanation doesn't lie in the fact that while people recognize the over-expansion they do not comprehend the possible aftermath. It is said that memories of a given economic era die out from one generation to the next. The personal recollections of the last great boom era, in 1928-1929, are only held by older people. The great mass of present-day automobile and home buyers and borrowers were too young to pay heed to those days or weren't even around.

ACCORDINGLY, although a great many people look askance at the current boom they have not studiously analyzed the possible outcome. Having lived mostly in either war or boom times, and having been propagandized to believe that "no depression will be allowed to develop," they naturally have no personal fear of an economic smash-up such as occurred at periodic intervals in past history.

That's one side of the argument.

The other is, as stated, that many people figure they'll ride the merry-go-round and take their chances of getting off without getting hurt.

So—to return to our slogan—while everybody may be thinking alike on the present over-doing and over-borrowing, they are still likely to be wrong from this standpoint: They recognize the conditions which exist, but are not doing anything to rectify them. In consequence, the results are likely to be the same as they would be if nobody was aware of the situation.

From the second viewpoint—that, where all think alike, no one thinks very much—the lack of thinking is on what will happen if the over-doing and over-borrowing continue.

Finally, let us consider what the powers-that-be are doing about all this:

WASHINGTON monetary and economic authorities are deeply concerned with the dangers of a run-away boom. You have seen "warnings" lately which it is hoped will slow things down. Margins in the stock market were raised, and the rediscount rate at Federal Reserve Banks was increased. Doubtless further "curbs" will be forthcoming if the pace doesn't slow down.

I think you'll agree that exciting economic times may lie ahead.

70 Million Are Adopting Daylight Saving Sunday

(By The Associated Press)

The sun won't be up as high as usual when millions of Americans go to work next week, but it'll stay up longer after they get home.

Reason for the change is Daylight Saving Time, which goes into effect in the most populous sections of the nation at 2 a. m. Sunday. At that moment, it suddenly will become 3 a. m.

The household will have to get up and stir around an hour earlier, but they'll have an extra hour of sunshine when the day's stint is done.

A NATIONAL survey by the Elgin Observatory, Elgin, Ill., shows nearly 70 million Americans will go on the new schedule. The other 81 million will stick to Standard Time.

The shift will be made in New England, New York, New Jersey, Washington, D. C., Delaware, California and Nevada, virtually all of Maryland and Pennsylvania, most of Illinois, and major cities in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

The South and the Great Central region of the United States will stay on regular time. Farmers say the cows don't come home until sundown, and there's no point in changing clocks if they can't change milking time.

ALTHOUGH Daylight Time customarily has ended the last Sunday in September, there are plans to extend it until the last Sunday in October this year in the northeastern states.

New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Pittsburgh, Pa., already have added the extra month of "fast" time, and other states in the region may do so. Lawmakers are pondering the idea in Philadelphia, Maine, Chicago and New Jersey.

All financial and commodity markets in New York city and New York state will shift automatically to Daylight Time.

THE IDEA of switching clocks to grab an extra hour of daylight during the long days of the warm season was originated nearly 50 years ago by an Englishman, William Willett. Said he:

"While daylight surrounds us, cheerfulness reigns and courage is bred for the struggle of life."

Big appeal of the early time is in industrial areas, where it may mean less electricity for lighting. It also provides more afterwork daylight for leisure of workers.

The Elgin Observatory report said that when the change comes, 216,317,398 watches and clocks will have to be reset.

When he was sick once, several persons complained they overslept.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

It is becoming evident, the Ruminator thinks, that we are entering an exciting economic era.

One of this writer's pet slogans concerning his theory of contrary opinion goes this way: When everybody thinks alike, "everyone" is likely to be wrong. Walter Lippman has twisted this around to read: Where all think alike, no one thinks very much.

Applying these sayings to the current era of boom-time economics you find yourself doing some interesting ruminating.

I RECENTLY READ in a little magazine of economic opinion ("Investor's Future") that from a test-sampling which had been conducted "the average man-on-the-street" is fully aware of the "over-doing and over-borrowing" that is going on.

In other words, "everyone" (according to this survey) knows that (1) automobile sales cannot continue to maintain the present pace; that (2) the building of houses is being overdone; and (3) that installment and credit business is being over-expanded dangerously.

As I say, according to the survey, everybody knows that this cannot go on.

So where does this leave us contrarians?

Does it mean that because everybody seems to be aware of the dangers of current over-expansion that over-expansion doesn't exist?

Or—does it mean that actually there is no over-expansion—that the current extraordinary pace of buying and borrowing can be absorbed because of the present rate of personal incomes?

Or — thirdly — does it mean that while everybody knows the pace is too swift they simply don't give a hoot and intend to ride the merry-go-round as long as it keeps turning?

AS IN ALL economic conundrums, you can see explanations from all sides. What is important, however, is to try to determine which of the three latter questions above are likely to be closest to the real condition prevailing.

At first blush, it semed to the Ruminator that the so-called man-on-the-street was not really aware of the distortions mentioned. However, the more I thought about it and the more I discussed it with others the more I swung over to the viewpoint that people generally are conscious of the over-buying and over-borrowing—but are indifferent and unconcerned about the outcome.

I wonder if the explanation doesn't lie in the fact that while people recognize the over-expansion they do not comprehend the possible aftermath. It is said that memories of a given economic era die out from one generation to the next. The personal recollections of the last great boom era, in 1928-1929, are only held by older people. The great mass of present-day automobile and home buyers and borrowers were too young to pay heed to those days or weren't even around.

ACCORDINGLY, although a great many people look askance at the current boom they have not studiously analyzed the possible outcome. Having lived mostly in either war or boom times, and having been propagandized to believe that "no depression will be allowed to develop," they naturally have no personal fear of an economic smash-up such as occurred at periodic intervals in past history.

That's one side of the argument.

The other is, as stated, that many people figure they'll ride the merry-go-round and take their chances of getting off without getting hurt.

So—to return to our slogan—while everybody may be thinking alike on the present over-doing and over-borrowing, they are still likely to be wrong from this standpoint: They recognize the conditions which exist, but are not doing anything to rectify them. In consequence, the results are likely to be the same as they would be if nobody was aware of the situation.

From the second viewpoint—that, where all think alike, no one thinks very much—the lack of thinking is on what will happen if the over-doing and over-borrowing continue.

Finally, let us consider what the powers-that-be are doing about all this:

WASHINGTON monetary and economic authorities are deeply concerned with the dangers of a run-away boom. You have seen "warnings" lately which it is hoped will slow things down. Margins in the stock market were raised, and the rediscount rate at Federal Reserve Banks was increased. Doubtless further "curbs" will be forthcoming if the pace doesn't slow down.

Harriman Vetoes Bank Bill Aimed to Pool Mortgage Funds

Albany, April 22 (AP)—Gov. Harriman today vetoed a bill that would have permitted savings banks to pool their funds in order to make mortgage loans on improved property.

The governor noted that a similar measure was veoted last year by former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey on the ground that a study of the subject was needed.

Harriman also cited a memorandum in which George A. Mooney, state superintendent of banks, urged disapproval of the measure until "essential material" from a study was available.

HARRIMAN ALSO vetoed a bill that would have permitted county boards of supervisors to seek to change the site of two or more county offices in a single referendum question. A current law requires a separate vote on each proposed change.

Harriman said he was rejecting the measure because it did not require the boards to specify the new locations, as currently specified.

The governor signed a budget bill raising the salary scales for employes of State University Colleges and other educational institutions of the state. The new wage levels were effective April 1.

UNDER THE OLD scales, basic wages of employes in the professional category ranged from $2,500 to $9,500 a year. This scale was raised to $3,030-$11,148.

Non - professional employes were earning from $1,725 to $6,910. The new scale lifts this to from $2,100 to $8,890 a year.

Other bills signed by the governor:

Authorize school districts to regulate traffic on school parking lots or grounds (Sen. William S. Hults Jr., R.-Port Washington, and Assemblyman Anthony Barbiero, R-Nassau county).

Repeal an old law that required mayors of second-class cities to consult with their department heads at least 12 times a year (Sen. Thomas C. Desmond, R.-Newburgh).

Walter Alston, the quiet man, watched passively as his Brooklyn Dodgers set a modern major league record by winning their 10th straight since the start of the season. Then he strolled back to the clubhouse, where he fouled off two questions and smacked a third.

The first was a knuckler, hard to handle. "How long can you keep going?"

Alston puffed his cigarette. "That's anybody's guess."

The second was a curve that hung high. "Is it the spirit? Is it better than last year?"

ALSTON UNBUTTONED his uniform shirt. "The spirit's always good when a team is winning."

The third was a fat one. "What's kept you winning?"

Alston loosened his trousers. "A combination. Hitting. Pitching. Fielding."

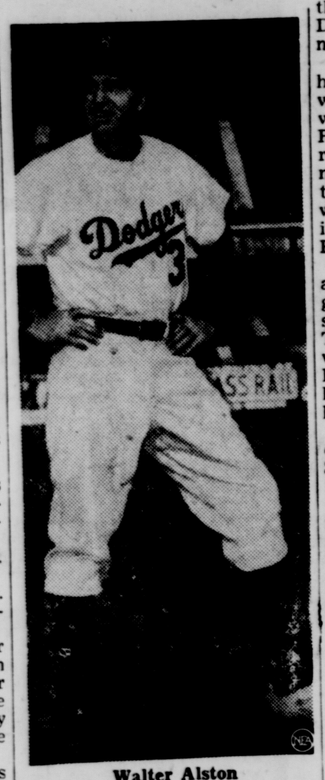

For a guy on the spot after the Brooks lost in '54, Alston wasn't much like a manager whose club had just won 10. He was more like Eddie Stanky after losing four. Except he didn't kick the wastebasket.

The matter-of-factness was evident among all the Dodgers. "I was on a club (Chicago Cubs) that won 21 straight once," said Coach Billy Herman. "We ain't even half way there yet."

"HELL," SAID Duke Snider. "We still got 144 to play."

That's the way it was yesterday after the Brooklyns had become the first team since 1900 to win its first 10 games. To do it, they put the slug on Robin Roberts' unbeaten record, pasting the best righthander in baseball and the Philadelphia Phils 14-4.

It was the only National League game played. New York at Pittsburgh was rained out. In the American, Washington knocked off first place Boston 1-0, Chicago whipped Detroit 9-1 and New York plastered Baltimore 14-2.

Roberts never had a chance against the Brooks, now after the all-time record of 12 straight opening victories by the 1884 Giants. The Dodgers swung for 10 runs and 11 hits against Robin, getting rid of him with two out in the third. Seven runs were scored in the frame, but six were unearned after Earl Torgeson did monstrous things with Junior Gilliam's grounder that should have been the third out.

Brooklyn wound up with 17 hits including four homers—three off Roberts. Jackie Robinson, Snider, Sandy Amoras and Don Zimmer hit the homers. Zimmer also doubled twice and singled.

JOE BLACK, in relief of Russ Meyer, was the winner, looking his best since carrying the Brooks to the 1952 pennant. He worked 6 2/3 innings.

The Giants are next in Ebbets Field. Six and a half games back in sixth place, they're throwing Jim Hearn at the Dodgers and Johnny Podres tonight.

At Washington Bob Porterfield hooked up in a pitching duel with Tom Brewer and finally won it in the ninth as Pete Runnels singled home the lone run. Boston got just one runner as far as third against Porterfield, who gave three hits, walked three and fanned seven in winning his second decision. Brewer (0-2) allowed five hits.

George Kell, his back troubles apparently a thing of the past, grand-slammed in the third to start Chicago's rout of the Tigers. Ned Garver purposely walked Minnie Minoso to get to Kell. Mike Fornieles (2-0) lost his shutout when Al Kaline homered in the sixth.

The Yankees climbed within one game of the leading Red Sox—along with Chicago and idle Cleveland—as Bob Turley (2-0) five hit his former Baltimore mates. The swifty whiffed seven, running his total to 17, but walked eight.

Invite 97 Teams; More Than 500 Entries Expected

Invitational '100' Draws Top Sprinters

The fourth annual Hudson Valley Relays top schoolboy track meet in the area, will be held Saturday, May 7, at New Paltz.

Coach Larry Johnson of New Paltz High is in charge of the event at the beautiful, new quarter-mile track at New Paltz. The meet has been a great success the past three years.

AS A RELAY carnival, the meet features competition in the 440 and 880 yard sprint relays; the one and two-mile relays, medley relay and 44-yard relay for freshmen.

In addition, there will be a full selection of field events, including the high jump, broad jump, pole vault, shot put, discus and javelin throws. The 180-yard low hurdles.

The top feature, of course, is the Invitation 100-yard dash which attracts the fastest sprinters from the various schools.

EIGHT OF THE fastest sprinters in the Hudson valley area will be invited to compete in the Invitation 100. The first three places will receive a specially engraved trophy and all other competitors in this event will receive bronze track shoes as a memento of the day. More than $350 worth of prizes will be awarded.

Invitations have been sent to 97 schools in the Hudson Valley region and an entry list of more than 500 is expected.

The students and faculty of New Paltz High are working to make this year's event another success.

Wood Memorial Set Saturday

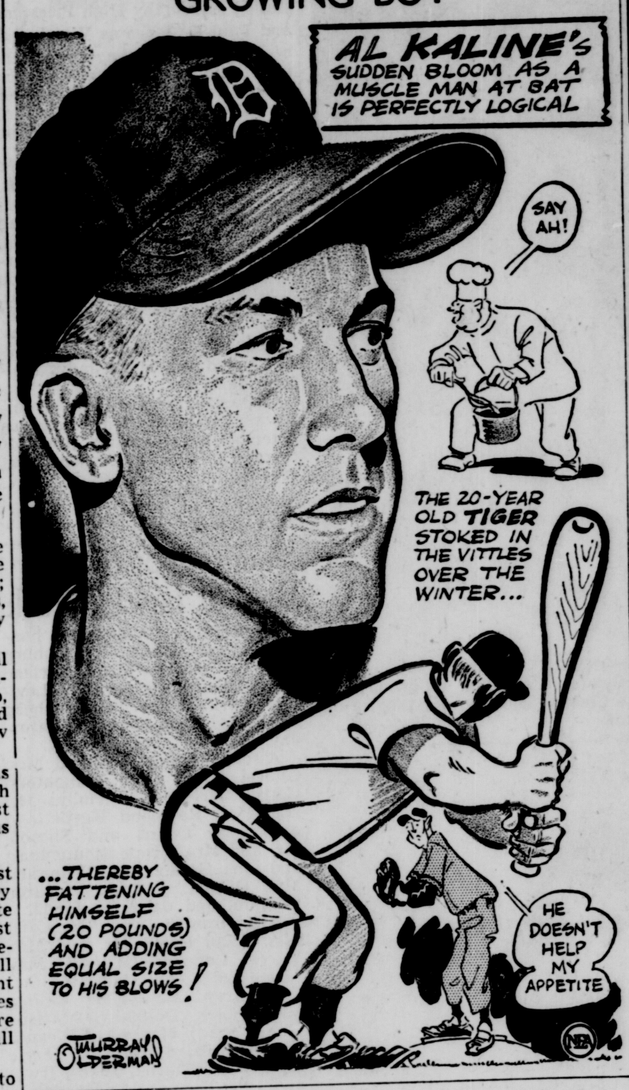

New York, April 22 (AP)—Nashua and Summer Tan, dominant powers among the 2-year-olds last year, match strides for the first time as 3-year olds tomorrow in a mile and an eighth race that is expected to send the winner postward on May 7 as the favorite for the Kentucky Derby.

The race is the $100,000-added Wood Memorial at Jamaica from which six winners have gone on to win the big turf classic at Churchill Downs.

Four times Nashua and Summer Tan clashed last year. In three races Belair's son of Nasrullah had his nose in front at the finish but each time it was so close that it took a camera to separate them. In the other, Summer Tan won by one and a half lengths in world record equalling time for six and one-half furlongs.

Wes Bids Again

Lawrence, Kan., April 22 (AP)—Three baton teams shoot for world records in the annual Kansas Relays tomorrow but Wes Santee's try for a 4-minute mile will overshadow the entire field of 900 athletes. Santee, who lowered his own American record to 4:00.5 at the Texas Relays three weeks ago, feels he can achieve his long-sought mark before a home state audience, providing weather conditions are good.

Just One Happy Family

Seven Dodger Reasons For 10-Game Record

Brooklyn, April 22 (AP)—Seven different Dodgers gave as many reasons for Brooklyn's record-breaking 10-game winning streak that began at the start of the season.

"What's the biggest difference between the current Brooklyn team and last year's disappointing club?"

"For the first time, we're getting good pitching, good hitting and good fielding all at the same time," said Manager Walt Alston.

"I'd say the biggest difference is the spirit," said Carl Furillo, the club's leading hitter with a .385 mark. "This is the best spirit I've seen on a Dodger club since 1947."

"THE BIGGEST difference to my way of thinking, is confidence," said Jackie Robinson.

"The guys are chirping more. They're pulling together. Even when we're behind, we seem to sense that we'll come through with the big inning."

"It's the pitching," volunteered Roy Campanella. "The pitchers are finally living up to their reputations. I always knew guys like Billy Loes, Johnny Podres, Carl Erskine, and Big Newk (Don Newcombe) were great pitchers. Now they're beginning to show it. For this you've got to give credit to Joe Becker (new pitching coach). He's got them running like they never ran before."

"INCENTIVE," said Gil Hodges. "None of us is exactly proud of our showing last year. We know we are a better ball club and we are out to prove it this year."

"I'd say the club is jelling this year where it didn't last year," said Duke Snider, the club's leading RBI man with 15 and home run hitter with four (tied with Furillo). "How did the Giants win last year? When they needed the hit they got it. When they needed the relief pitching they got it. When we needed it we didn't get it. It's different now."

PEE WEE REESE, the club captain probably summed it up best.

"You can't put your finger on any one thing," he said. "I'd say it is a combination of things. First of all, the attitude is a lot different. For instance did you ever see a more determined Billy Loes? Last year it seemed he just didn't give a dam. This year he's all business. Robinson is in better shape than he's been in a long time. The way Campanella is playing you'd never think he had a care in the world. He was a worried boy last year.

"Another thing. Alston (Manager Alston) is more sure of himself now. All last year we never played anywhere near the kind of ball we're playing now. Sure, we can't possibly continue at this pace, but I've got a feeling nobody is going to catch us this year."

SPORTS

• Sign of Progress:

Twaalfskill's Board of Directors has given the golf committee the green light on an interesting project. The venerable midtown layout will be surveyed for a par rating by the United States Golf Association.

The results could be interesting but don't expect any revolutionary changes. Twaalfskill has had its critics who scoffed at the par-70 rating the course now enjoys, but if you analyze the layout the par-70 isn't as "weak" as some experts would have you believe.

The par the USGA arrived at will, of course, be based on the capability of the average player, not the professional. Admittedly there are two "weak" holes at Twaalfskill, the par-4 fourth and the par-5 seventh. But these are balanced by rugged par-3 third, one of the finest golf holes in the Hudson valley area and a stiff par-5 fifth.

Whatever ground the average golfer might gain on the fourth and seventh is likely to be dissipated on the third and fifth. And how many duffers are there who can consistently rack up pars on those so-called "weak holes"? The others, 1-2-6-8-9 are solid par holes.

• The Brassie Over the Driver:

Having trouble with your driver? Larry Robinson points out that with its big head and straight face, the driver is certain to emphasize a slight swing fault out of proportion. It is a club which requires mastery and efficiency. No golfer has ever completely mastered the driver. Even the mighty George Bayer of Long Island 275-pound, 6-foot-7 inch ex-gridder who has ended all controversy over who is the world's biggest hitter (he averages 320 off the tee), doesn't control the shot. Take the advice of most pros and use the brassie, with its added loft. The average golfer will hit just as far with the brassies as he does with the No. 1 wood off tees.

• The Nineteenth Hole:

Robert Trent Jones, the famous golf architect who is building Wiltwyck's new course, is toughening up the Olympic Country Club layout at San Fancisco for the forthcoming U. S. Open. The big names who recall Jones' surgery on Oakland Hills (Detroit) in 1953 are uneasy about Trent's current activities which include, of course, getting nine holes ready for Wiltwyck by Memorial Day. . . . The grapevine has Johnny Gleason lined up for an assistant role at Art Davis' new club. Johnny is the former Kingston High School star who moved to Poughkeepsie and now lives at New Paltz. Alex Gerlak has the Twaalfskill greens in the best early-season condition in years. Clarence "Dubby" Raichle, chairman of the tournament committee, will serve as Twaalfskil golf correspondent for the season. Twaalfskill and Woodstock fairways are bathed in luxurious green. Homer Van Aken and George Hughes are doing their usual great job at Twaalfskill and Alex Gerlak supervises in masterful style. Dubby has lined up an inter-club duel with Shawangunk of Ellenville.

GOLFILOSOPHY: This is the time of the season when you polish up the clubs. Start the season right by taking a lesson from your club pro. And during the long season remember Walter Hagen's bit of philosophy: You just can't expect to play every hole perfect. Here and there, even the best golfer is bound to miss a shot. Maybe you'll get to back and maybe you won't. Flipping your lid certainly isn't going to help.

Righty or Lefty It Makes No Difference to Skowron

New York, April 22 (AP)—Bill (Moose) Skowron was a platoon man last year, sitting on the bench when the New York Yankees faced a righthander. At the end of the year he had a .340 average.

"Maybe I did wrong with the boy, not playing him both ways," said Manager Casey Stengel last fall. "Maybe I'll do different next year."

Now Skowron is playing every game no matter who pitches, and hitting .471. Against the righthanders, is average is .423. He has hit safely in all eight Yankee games.

"I ALWAYS KNEW I could hit the righthanders better than the lefties," said the big right-handed hitting first baseman. It was all right with me last year—or any year—to sit on the bench whenever the manager says so. Casey has been good to me. I'm only too glad to do anything he says. But I know I can hit those righthanders."

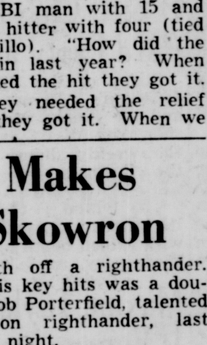

So far he has hit two home runs, both off a righthander. One of his key hits was a double off Bob Porterfield, talented Washington righthander, last Saturday night.

THIS IS SKOWRON'S third year as a first baseman. He used to play the outfield and third base. Although he was crude and over-eager, he did a passable job at the bag last season in his rookie year. At times he amazes you by coming up with a sparkler.

Skowron was a Purdue football player, slated to be the regular right halfback on the 1950 team when the Yanks signed him for a $20,000 bonus just before football practice was to start.

Invite 97 Teams; More Than 500 Entries Expected

Invitational '100' Draws Top Sprinters

The fourth annual Hudson Valley Relays top schoolboy track meet in the area, will be held Saturday, May 7, at New Paltz.

Coach Larry Johnson of New Paltz High is in charge of the event at the beautiful, new quarter-mile track at New Paltz. The meet has been a great success the past three years.

AS A RELAY carnival, the meet features competition in the 440 and 880 yard sprint relays; the one and two-mile relays, medley relay and 44-yard relay for freshmen.

In addition, there will be a full selection of field events, including the high jump, broad jump, pole vault, shot put, discus and javelin throws. The 180-yard low hurdles.

The top feature, of course, is the Invitation 100-yard dash which attracts the fastest sprinters from the various schools.

EIGHT OF THE fastest sprinters in the Hudson valley area will be invited to compete in the Invitation 100. The first three places will receive a specially engraved trophy and all other competitors in this event will receive bronze track shoes as a memento of the day. More than $350 worth of prizes will be awarded.

Invitations have been sent to 97 schools in the Hudson Valley region and an entry list of more than 500 is expected.

The students and faculty of New Paltz High are working to make this year's event another success.

Wood Memorial Set Saturday

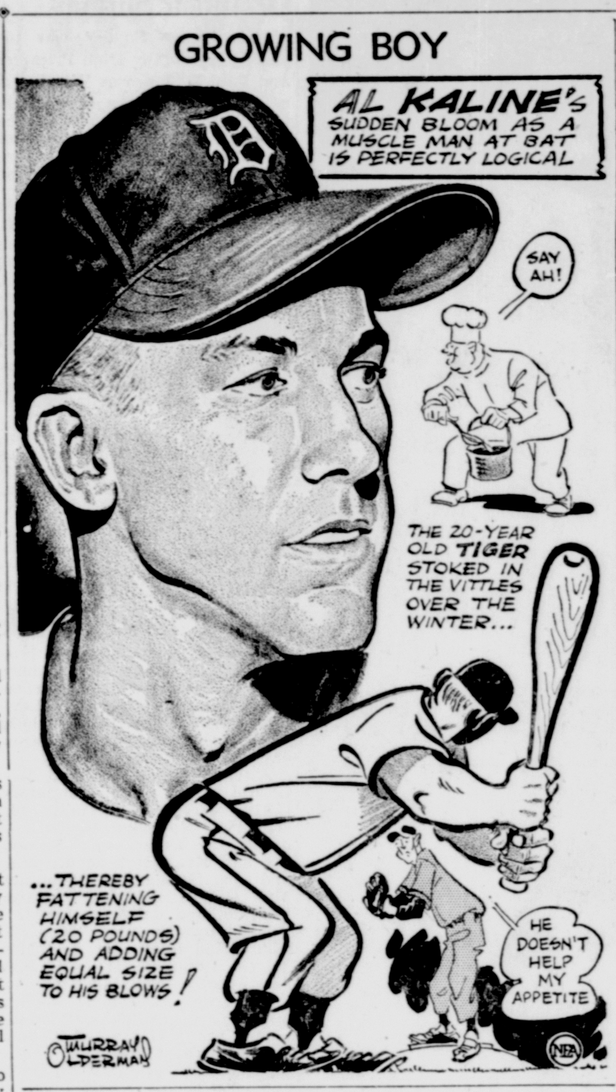

New York, April 22 (AP)—Nashua and Summer Tan, dominant powers among the 2-year-olds last year, match strides for the first time as 3-year olds tomorrow in a mile and an eighth race that is expected to send the winner postward on May 7 as the favorite for the Kentucky Derby.

The race is the $100,000-added Wood Memorial at Jamaica from which six winners have gone on to win the big turf classic at Churchill Downs.

Four times Nashua and Summer Tan clashed last year. In three races Belair's son of Nasrullah had his nose in front at the finish but each time it was so close that it took a camera to separate them. In the other, Summer Tan won by one and a half lengths in world record equalling time for six and one-half furlongs.

Wes Bids Again

Lawrence, Kan., April 22 (AP)—Three baton teams shoot for world records in the annual Kansas Relays tomorrow but Wes Santee's try for a 4-minute mile will overshadow the entire field of 900 athletes. Santee, who lowered his own American record to 4:00.5 at the Texas Relays three weeks ago, feels he can achieve his long-sought mark before a home state audience, providing weather conditions are good.

Just One Happy Family

Seven Dodger Reasons For 10-Game Record

Brooklyn, April 22 (AP)—Seven different Dodgers gave as many reasons for Brooklyn's record-breaking 10-game winning streak that began at the start of the season.

"What's the biggest difference between the current Brooklyn team and last year's disappointing club?"

'For the first time, we're getting good pitching, good hitting and good fielding all at the same time," said Manager Walt Alston.

"I'd say the biggest difference is the spirit," said Carl Furillo, the club's leading hitter with a .385 mark. "This is the best spirit I've seen on a Dodger club since 1947."

"THE BIGGEST difference to my way of thinking, is confidence," said Jackie Robinson.

"The guys are chirping more. They're pulling together. Even when we're behind, we seem to sense that we'll come through with the big inning."

"It's the pitching," volunteered Roy Campanella. "The pitchers are finally living up to their reputations. I always knew guys like Billy Loes, Johnny Podres, Carl Erskine, and Big Newk (Don Newcombe) were great pitchers. Now they're beginning to show it. For this you've got to give credit to Joe Becker (new pitching coach). He's got them running like they never ran before."

"INCENTIVE," said Gil Hodges. "None of us is exactly proud of our showing last year. We know we are a better ball club and we are out to prove it this year."

"I'd say the club is jelling this year where it didn't last year," said Duke Snider, the club's leading RBI man with 15 and home run hitter with four (tied with Furillo). "How did the Giants win last year? When they needed the hit they got it. When they needed the relief pitching they got it. When we needed it we didn't get it. It's different now."

PEE WEE REESE, the club captain probably summed it up best.

"You can't put your finger on any one thing," he said. "I'd say it is a combination of things. First of all, the attitude is a lot different. For instance did you ever see a more determined Billy Loes? Last year it seemed he just didn't give a dam. This year he's all business. Robinson is in better shape than he's been in a long time. The way Campanella is playing you'd never think he had a care in the world. He was a worried boy last year.

"Another thing, Alston (Manager Alston) is more sure of himself now. All last year we never played anywhere near the kind of ball we're playing now. Sure, we can't possibly continue at this pace, but I've got a feeling nobody is going to catch us this year."

Righty or Lefty It Makes No Difference to Skowron

New York, April 22 (AP)—Bill (Moose) Skowron was a platoon man last year, sitting on the bench when the New York Yankees faced a righthander. At the end of the year he had a .340 average.

"Maybe I did wrong with the boy, not playing him both ways," said Manager Casey Stengel last fall. "Maybe I'll do different next year."

Now Skowron is playing every game no matter who pitches, and hitting .471. Against the righthanders, is average is .423. He has hit safely in all eight Yankee games.

"I ALWAYS KNEW I could hit the righthanders better than the lefties," said the big right-handed hitting first baseman. It was all right with me last year—or any year—to sit on the bench whenever the manager says so. Casey has been good to me. I'm only too glad to do anything he says. But I know I can hit those righthanders."

So far he has hit two home runs, both off a righthander. One of his key hits was a double off Bob Porterfield, talented Washington righthander, last Saturday night.

THIS IS SKOWRON'S third year as a first baseman. He used to play the outfield and third base. Although he was crude and over-eager, he did a passable job at the bag last season in his rookie year. At times he amazes you by coming up with a sparkler.

Skowron was a Purdue football player, slated to be the regular right halfback on the 1950 team when the Yanks signed him for a $20,000 bonus just before football practice was to start.

• Sign of Progress:

Twaalfskill's Board of Directors has given the golf committee the green light on an interesting project. The venerable midtown layout will be surveyed for a par rating by the United States Golf Association.

The results could be interesting but don't expect any revolutionary changes. Twaalfskill has had its critics who scoffed at the par-70 rating the course now enjoys, but if you analyze the layout the par-70 isn't as "weak" as some experts would have you believe.

The par the USGA arrived at will, of course, be based on the capability of the average player, not the professional. Admittedly there are two "weak" holes at Twaalfskill, the par-4 fourth and the par-5 seventh. But these are balanced by rugged par-3 third, one of the finest golf holes in the Hudson valley area and a stiff par-5 fifth.

Whatever ground the average golfer might gain on the fourth and seventh is likely to be dissipated on the third and fifth. And how many duffers are there who can consistently rack up pars on those so-called "weak holes"? The others, 1-2-6-8-9 are solid par holes.

• The Brassie Over the Driver:

Having trouble with your driver? Larry Robinson points out that with its big head and straight face, the driver is certain to emphasize a slight swing fault out of proportion. It is a club which requires mastery and efficiency. No golfer has ever completely mastered the driver. Even the mighty George Bayer of Long Island 275-pound, 6-foot-7 inch ex-gridder who has ended all controversy over who is the world's biggest hitter (he averages 320 off the tee), doesn't control the shot. Take the advice of most pros and use the brassie, with its added loft. The average golfer will hit just as far with the brassies as he does with the No. 1 wood off tees.

• The Nineteenth Hole:

Robert Trent Jones, the famous golf architect who is building Wiltwyck's new course, is toughening up the Olympic Country Club layout at San Fancisco for the forthcoming U. S. Open. The big names who recall Jones' surgery on Oakland Hills (Detroit) in 1953 are uneasy about Trent's current activities which include, of course, getting nine holes ready for Wiltwyck by Memorial Day. . . . The grapevine has Johnny Gleason lined up for an assistant role at Art Davis' new club. Johnny is the former Kingston High School star who moved to Poughkeepsie and now lives at New Paltz. Alex Gerlak has the Twaalfskill greens in the best early-season condition in years. Clarence "Dubby" Raichle, chairman of the tournament committee, will serve as Twaalfskil golf correspondent for the season. Twaalfskill and Woodstock fairways are bathed in luxurious green. Homer Van Aken and George Hughes are doing their usual great job at Twaalfskill and Alex Gerlak supervises in masterful style. Dubby has lined up an inter-club duel with Shawangunk of Ellenville.

GOLFILOSOPHY: This is the time of the season when you polish up the clubs. Start the season right by taking a lesson from your club pro. And during the long season remember Walter Hagen's bit of philosophy: You just can't expect to play every hole perfect. Here and there, even the best golfer is bound to miss a shot. Maybe you'll get to back and maybe you won't. Flipping your lid certainly isn't going to help.

Chicago, April 22 (AP)—Willie Pastrano, just a growing boy, and Willie Troy, a power swinger with 23 knockouts in 30 victories, match shots tonight in a scheduled 10 round bout at Chicago Stadium.

The good-looking Pastrano, a product of New Orleans who now is boxing out of Miami Beach, Fla., will be making his second national television appearance. In his debut before the cameras a month ago, he disposed of Al Andrews in the same ring.

Willie's middleweight test against New Yorker Troy will be viewed over NBC starting at 10 p. m. EST.

Although only 19, the fast-stepping Pastrano has had 37 pro. battles, winning 30, losing 4 and drawing in 3. Among his victims, in addition to Andrews, are Bobby Dykes, Jimmy Martinez and Jacques Royer, French middleweight king.

Pastrano-Troy In TV Feature

Chicago, April 22 (AP)—Willie Pastrano, just a growing boy, and Willie Troy, a power swinger with 23 knockouts in 30 victories, match shots tonight in a scheduled 10 round bout at Chicago Stadium.

The good-looking Pastrano, a product of New Orleans who now is boxing out of Miami Beach, Fla., will be making his second national television appearance. In his debut before the cameras a month ago, he disposed of Al Andrews in the same ring.

Willie's middleweight test against New Yorker Troy will be viewed over NBC starting at 10 p. m. EST.

Although only 19, the fast-stepping Pastrano has had 37 pro. battles, winning 30, losing 4 and drawing in 3. Among his victims, in addition to Andrews, are Bobby Dykes, Jimmy Martinez and Jacques Royer, French middleweight king.

Says Calls Impede Tax Refund Work

Riley J. Ratterree, District Director of Interpal Revenue, Albany, today requested taxpayers to refrain from making inquiries pertaining to tax refunds until the revenue offices hgave had the opportunity to complete the processing operations.

Ratterree said that while every effort is being made to expedite payment of refunds to those entitled, the cooperation of taxpayers is essential if these efforts are to succeed.

"Many taxpayers do not realize," said the district director, "that by being impatient and writing or calling the offices relative to their refunds, they are impeding the entire refunding program, since each inquiry must be processed and answered."

In calling attention to the situation, the revenue official stated that tax returns processing is proceeding as rapidly as possible, and he urges taxpayers to withhold inquiries until June 30, if they have not received their refunds by that date.
